This Society was organized in 1892, "for the promotion of genealogical research, the procuring of transcripts of all official records affording genealogical information, the collection and preservation of registers of births, marriages and deaths kept by religious societies or individuals, and everything pertaining to the history of persons connected with America. The collections shall be the property of The Historical Society of Pennsylvania."

During the twenty-nine years of its existence the Society has collected over $16,000, and has on its shelves 394 manuscript volumes. It is impossible with the present number of members to keep pace with the decay and loss accruing from varying causes to the uncopied records; therefore it is greatly desired to increase the membership and thereby the usefulness of the Society. Annual dues are $5.00, and the life-membership fee is $50.00. Library Bonds are accepted for life-membership.

The money derived from life-memberships is invested, the income alone being used. The Publications are sent free to members, and life members are entitled to all available publications. Vol. I, Nos. 2 and 3 and Vol. III, No. 1, are out of print.

THE DRAYTONS OF SOUTH CAROLINA AND PHILADELPHIA.*

CONTRIBUTED BY MRS. EMILY HEYWARD DRAYTON TAYLOR.

THOMAS DRAYTON,† a descendant of the Draytons of Northamptonshire‡ in England, was among the gentlemen adventurers of the British Island of Barbadoes as early as 1671. According to the early American chronicles of the family he was one of the little group of colonists who accompanied Sir John Yeamans§ from Barbadoes to South Carolina, * This compilation is, in part, the result of the investigations of the late William Drayton, Esq., of Philadelphia.

An article on this family, by Frank Whiting Leach, Esq., appeared in the series, "OLD PHILADELPHIA FAMILIES," in the North American, Philadelphia, December 15, 1912.

† The statement is made in old family documents that, "he was the son of John Drayton, 4th, of Atherstone, Northamptonshire, afterwards of London."

‡ Governor John Drayton, in the Biographical Sketch of his father which prefaces his "Memoirs of the American Revolution," says: "William Henry Drayton was born in South Carolina, at Drayton Hall on Ashley River, in September, 1742. He was the eldest son of John Drayton, whose father, Thomas Drayton, was a descendant of the Drayton family of Northamptonshire in England."

§ An ancient Drayton chart contains this note "It is supposed that he came to South Carolina (from the British Island of Barbadoes, to which he or his parents had gone from England) with a small colony in the year 1672, in the reign of Charles II, with Sir John Yeamans, and with this colony were introduced the first negro slaves into South Carolina. He settled on the south side of the Ashley River, and the estate from the trees was called Magnolia."

in 1671. These chronicles further state that he settled on the south side of the Ashley River where his estate, from its trees, was called Magnolia, and eventually became one of the most picturesque plantations of the Colony and State. It is now known that "Magnolia" belonged to a later Thomas Drayton.

The length of Thomas Drayton's stay in the Carolinas is but problematical. The first land warrant of record to him, is for two hundred acres under date of 18 May, 1678.* A grant of that acreage on Newtown Creek was issued to him 2 November, following. It is, however, by no means certain that Thomas Drayton, the elder, was ever an actual settler on the Ashley, or, had ever entertained serious intentions of removal from St. Michael's Parish, Barbadoes, where, in 1679, his name appears in that vicinity as "the owner of lands, servants and slaves."† Indeed, it is a fair conjecture and one in which the later students of the family history seemingly agree, that the grant of 1678, was not his but that of his son's of the same name, or, if his, was taken from the son, and that he remained a resident of St. Michael's until his death in 1702, leaving a will, proved 9 November, of that year.

His marriage has not been ascertained, nor the names of his children save that of his son Thomas, who may justly be considered the founder of the American family of his surname.

Child of Thomas Drayton:

2. i. THOMAS,<sup>2</sup> b. circa 1645; d. before 10 November, 1700; m. Elizabeth Carpenter.

2. THOMAS<sup>2</sup> DRAYTON (Thomas<sup>1</sup>), second of the name, was born circa 1645, doubtless in England, and accompanied his father to Barbadoes. It was probably he, and not the father, who was of Sir John Yeamans's company of 1671, and he who secured the warrants and grant of 1678, either directly to himself, or, by right of his father. No question can there be that he it was, who, as Thomas Drayton, junr., had permission to leave the Isle of Barbadoes for Carolina in the ship Mary, Nicholas Lockwood, commander, April 25, 1679.*

Of his life in South Carolina no detailed information is yet available. The soil and climate of his new environment were not unlike that of his former one, and he was thus able to adapt himself to the avocation of the gentleman planter of that period and place with little or no difficulty. The archives of South Carolina show him to have been living as late as 12 May, 1699, when, with wife Elizabeth he conveyed to Stephen Fox three hundred acres of land on Stone River; † Thomas Drayton, Jr., being one of the witnesses to the transaction. This was one of the closing acts of his career and he died sometime before 10 November, 1700, on which date letters of administration cum testamento,‡ on the estate of Thomas Drayton, were granted to Thomas Drayton, Jr., Stephen Fox being security on the bond.§

According to the family chronicles his wife was Elizabeth Carpenter. She was probably the Elizabeth Drayton, whose burial is of record, on St. Phillip's Parish || Register, as occurring 12 May, 1722. The number and order of his children is uncertain. He is, however, believed to have had the following children, place of birth not known:

3. i. MICHAEL, from whom the Barbadoes family sprang.
4. ii. THOMAS, b. circa 1670-5; d. 1716/7; m. Ann Fox.
5. iii. JOHN, of South Carolina, of whom information is indefinite.

4. THOMAS<sup>3</sup> DRAYTON (Thomas,<sup>2</sup> Thomas<sup>1</sup>), born, possibly on the Island of Barbadoes, circa 1670-5; died at Magnolia, South Carolina in 1716, leaving a will dated 12 June, 1714, which was proved 5 June, 1717.

Information concerning this third Thomas Drayton, second of the South Carolina family, is almost as meagre as that of the earlier generations of his name. Doubtless he accompanied his father to Carolina on the good ship Mary, in 1679, and, upon his father's decease, in 1700, became possessed of the plantation on the Ashley and there spent the remainder of his days, adding perhaps to its acreage, certainly to the cultivation of its natural beauties. Under date 3d month 7th, 1698, Honore Michawe granted to Thomas Drayton, Jr., one hundred acres of land at the north branch of Stone River, . . . bounded west—upon the lands of Stephen Fox, and, on 16 August, 1703, Thomas Drayton conveyed a tract of one hundred and fifty-four acres on Pon Pon, his wife Ann being a party thereto. These would seem to be his only land transactions of record.

He married, in South Carolina, circa 1698, Ann * probably daughter of Stephen Fox, who survived him many years, dying 1 July, 1742. Her will of 2 March, 1741, was proved 30 August, 1742. Stephen Fox, his father in law, had, like his father, been a citizen of Barbadoes and had left there, under permit of 29 March, 1679, for Carolina, where he too continued to reside until his death, in 1706. By his will Stephen Fox devised the Magnolia plantation of four hundred and two acres to Thomas Drayton, under whose will it passed to his son, Thomas Drayton. The latter added to the property an adjoining tract of two hundred and sixty acres which had been conveyed, 26 March, 1729, to his mother, Ann Drayton, apparently one-half for herself and one-half for her son, Stephen Fox Drayton, both of whom devised their interest to Thomas Drayton, who died in 1760.

Children, born in South Carolina, order uncertain:

6. i. THOMAS,<sup>4</sup> b. circa 1700; d. 11 Nov., 1760; m. (1) Elizabeth Bull; (2) Lady Mary Mackensie.
- ii. MARY, d. 2 Mar., 1749; m. 21 Dec., 1721, Richard Fuller. Issue:
1. Ann Booth Fuller, b. 25 Jan., 1723; d. 27 Mar., 1748; m.

* The statement is made in one family chronicle that Thomas Drayton, son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Carpenter) Drayton married, in England, at the age of twenty-four, Ann Daniel, widow, aged twenty-eight. It is quite possible that Ann Daniel, widow, and Ann Fox were one and the same. There is still another statement that his wife's maiden name was Booth, and this appears to have been based upon the fact that the daughter of Mrs. Ann Drayton's only daughter was Ann Booth Fuller. Against all this is the opening clause of the Drayton monument, q. v.

7. iv. JOHN, d. 31 May, 1779; m. (1) Sarah Catlett; (2) Charlotte Bull; (3) Margaret Glean; (4) Rebecca Perry.

6. THOMAS<sup>4</sup> DRAYTON (Thomas,<sup>3</sup> Thomas,<sup>2</sup> Thomas,<sup>1</sup>) was born, probably about 1700, at the Drayton plantation on the Ashley. He early rose to prominence in the Colony, being named for His Majesty's Council in 1739; and, under appointment of 7 June, 1731,‡ and re-appointment of 26 March, 1737, was one of His Majesty's Justices of South Carolina. In 1740 he was commissioner to sign bills of credit;§ was a member of the Commons House of Assembly 1745-1747,|| and may have filled other positions of trust and distinction.

The exact date of his death is slightly uncertain. One authority gives it as of 11 November, 1761, and another 13 November, 1760. The latter, from the records of St. Andrews,|| refers doubtless to his burial and is correct. The former, incorrectly taken as to year from family papers, is, it is fair to conclude, that of his death. Among certain old family documents is the following epitaph in the handwriting of William Drayton, his eldest son, the copy apparently of an inscription for, or from, a churchyard monument:

* 1. William John Ross, b. 17 Mar., 1748. 2. Mary Ross.

¶ St. Andrew's parish, established by Act of Assembly as early as 1706, on the south side of Ashley river, was once one of the wealthiest and most thickly settled in South Carolina. The old church, which gave name to the parish, still stands about six miles from Drayton Hall and some eighteen from Charleston.

Reflect in Time

He married, first, 26 December, 1730, Elizabeth, grand-daughter of Colonel Stephen Bull* of Ashley Hall and daughter of William Bull,† governor of South Carolina, * Stephen Bull, progenitor of the eminent Bull family of South Carolina, was one of the leaders of the expedition which sailed from England on the frigate, Carolina in 1669. Obtaining large grants of land on the Ashley river and St. Helena, he settled the Ashley Hall plantation in 1671, which remained in his family more than two hundred years. In October of 1671 he assisted in selecting the site for the city of Charleston—a service which his son, William Bull, rendered to Savannah, sixty-two years later. One of the five original deputies to the Provincial parliament, Stephen Bull was Councillor of the Grand Council (under Locke's Constitution) as Lord Ashley's deputy, 1669-72, as Commoner 1672-74, as Lord Cornbury's deputy 1674-82 and as deputy for the other proprietors, 1684-90, 1694-99. He was also Master of the ordnance, Captain and engineer of the forts at Charleston, 1672-75; Captain and Lieutenant-Colonel of the Provincial forces 1687-93; Justice of the Peace and of the Courts, 1683; Surveyor-general 1684 and Register of the Province, 1696. A great explorer among the Indians, he was, in 1671, chosen Cassique of the Etteuwans, and, in 1696, was appointed by Governor Archdale to make a treaty with the Indians of the North Carolina coast. He died about 1706 and is buried at Ashley.—South Carolina Historical and Genealogical Magazine, vol. I, pp. 76-7.

† Hon. William Bull, father-in-law of Thomas Drayton, was born at Ashley Hall, in April, 1683, and died at his Sheldon plantation, 21 March, 1755. He married Mary, daughter of Richard Quintayne, Esq., of Berkeley County, S. C., by his wife Elizabeth Edward, she died 19 March, 1738/9. He was a member of the Commons House of Assembly, of South Carolina, 1706-1719;

1737-43. By this marriage Judge Drayton considerably augmented his material possessions, receiving under Governor Bull's will various lots in the Barony of Radnor, part of which formed the Sheldon plantation of the latter, then in Granville, now in Beaufort County.* Mrs. Drayton, born at Ashley Hall, 9 March, 1712/3, died at Magnolia, 6 March, 1751, was the mother of ten children, five of whom died in infancy. Mr. Drayton married, secondly, 4 August, 1757, Lady Mary, second daughter of Archibald Mackenzie, Earl of Cromartie, and widow of Captain Clarke. An invitation to this wedding, addressed to Charles Pinckney, is in the possession of one of the present-day Draytons of Philadelphia. With the quaint grace of yester-years it reads:

Mr. Drayton Augt. 3d, 1757—
his wedding tomorrow with Lady
Mary McKensie, Daught. of Ld. &
Ldy Cromartie.

To
Charles Pinckney Esqr.
Richmond Building.

There is also this personal note to Pinckney:

Dear Sir:

I believe Ld. & Lady Cromartie will wait on you, and Mrs. P. this morning. They were prevented yesterday by the rain. Time draws near for Execution. I hope you'll be present to see my Exit, from this, to a better State. I am,

Yours very Obediently,

Thos. Drayton.

Please to send the Stockings.
Wednesday morn—
I wish 'twere Thursday.

This union lasted little longer than three years, when, Mrs. Drayton, again a widow, married Hon. Henry Middleton † of served as Captain in the Tuscaroras and Yamasee Wars, was Colonel of Berkeley County Provincial troops; commissioner of Indians affairs in 1721; member of Provincial Council 1721-1737; was president of Council 1737-1738, lieutenant-governor 1738-1755, and, as such governed the Province from 1737 until 1744, with ability, tact and courage. He was appointed to assist General Oglethorpe in the settlement of Georgia and, with him, marked out the town of Savannah, 9 Feb., 1733. His son, William Bull, was also lieutenant-governor of South Carolina.—Ibid, 77-80.

He was also a member of the Council of Safety of South Carolina and by his position, wealth and powerful family connection did much to turn the trend of thought in that State to the support of the American cause. His eldest son, Arthur Middleton (1742-1787), was a Signer of the Declaration of Independence.—Appleton's Cyclopaedia of American Biography, vol. iv, p. 316.

§ Stephen Drayton was commissioned ensign in the 44th Regiment of Foot [Provincials], 6 June, 1757 and promoted to a lieutenancy, 15 Sept., 1758, under Colonel James Abercrombie—"British Officers serving in America," in New England Historical and Genealogical Register, vol. 48, p. 299.

7. JOHN<sup>4</sup> DRAYTON (Thomas,<sup>3</sup> Thomas,<sup>2</sup> Thomas<sup>1</sup>), born at Magnolia, circa 1713; died at his plantation, called Strawberry, 31 May, 1779. Like his brother he rose to prominence in early manhood, was collector for the parish of St. Andrew's, James Island excepted, in 1738; occupied a seat on the bench of South Carolina in 1753 and subsequently, and, from 1754 until the beginning of the Revolution, was a member of the Privy Council. He was withal the richest man in the Province. At his decease his fortune aggregated 100,000 pounds sterling, besides many rice and other plantations, including Magnolia, and over five hundred slaves. He acquired Magnolia by purchase of 4 June 1774, from his nephew, William Drayton, then chief-justice of East Florida. "Owing a tract of land adjoining Magnolia," writes his grandson Governor John Drayton, in 1817, "advantageously situated on the borders of Ashley River, he early in life (1740) erected there a mansion and other offices and buildings of brick which he named Drayton Hall, and there all his children were born." Drayton Hall,<sup>4</sup> half a mile distant from Magnolia, is the only colonial mansion in that section of South Carolina to survive the ravages of the Civil War and is still a place of pilgrimage for those who love the charm and tradition of earlier years. In the Revolution, during portions of 1780 and 1781, Lord Cornwallis occupied Drayton Hall, appointed receivers for the estate and doled out daily rations to such of the family and dependants as had remained at home.

Judge Drayton married four times and had issue by each marriage: (1) Sarah, daughter of William Cattel; (2) 14 November, 1741, Charlotte Bull, born 15 August, 1719, daughter of Governor William Bull, and sister of his brother, Thomas Drayton's wife. His third marriage was to Margaret, daughter of Governor James Glenn, and his fourth, in March, 1775, was to Rebecca, daughter of Benjamin Perry.

In 1763 he was appointed chief justice of the Province of East-Florida, which he held until the beginning of hostilities between Great Britain and her Colonies. At this time friction arose between the chief justice and certain Crown officials, and the former was suspended from office.† Mr. Drayton was charged with being friendly to the Revolutionary party in the American Colonies‡ and his appeal to the English ministry for re-instatement to office was unsuccessful. He retired from East-Florida and after remaining some time

After the war he was chairman of the Committee of the South Carolina Society of Agriculture in 1785;† judge of the Admiralty Court of South Carolina, and was Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of that State from March until October, 1789. Upon the organization of the Federal Government he was appointed by President Washington, 18 November, 1789, first Judge of the United States Court for the District of South Carolina.‡ This last position he filled but six months, for death claimed him, 18 May, 1790. At the time of his decease he was Grand Master of the Fraternity of South Carolina Ancient York Masons.§ He was regarded by his contemporaries as "a gentleman of unusual talents and great professional knowledge." The College of New Jersey, now Princeton University, conferred upon him the degree of LL. D. in 1786.

Under his father's will Judge Drayton inherited the Magnolia plantation, to which he subsequently added a tract of

The last time . . . I carried my whole family to England."—Journal of Judge Drayton.

† "In March 1778 my Father quitted St. Augustine, with my mother in a dying condition, my three older sisters, myself not quite five years old and a younger Brother in his third year. After a tempestuous passage . . . we landed at Ramsgate the beginning of May. My dear Mother lingered about a fortnight after our arrival and expired May 19. She was buried at Ramsgate. The eldest son Jacob and her youngest son William did not accompany their parents to England. The former was taken from Dr. Dache's where he had been placed at School in Philadelphia and carried to Carolina. The latter was left in St. Augustine, being a sickly infant to whom a sea voyage, at that inclement season, would, in all probability, have proved fatal, at least so thought Dr. Turnbull an old and faithful friend of my Father's. His Wife an amiable woman and tenderly attached to my Mother took charge of her youngest child, and acted towards him with maternal kindness. My eldest brother, a youth of scarcely fifteen entered into the American army, at that early age, and continued a soldier during the whole of the Revolutionary War, exposed to all its hardships, which he endured with manly fortitude. Directly my Mother's funeral was over we left Ramsgate . . . My eldest sister, who was seventeen, was placed as parlor boarder at a reputable school in London, my other sister and myself . . . were put to a school in Dedham and here we remained for two years. My father had Tom always with him until he was of proper age to be placed at school.—Journal of Sarah Motte Drayton.

9. WILLIAM HENRY<sup>5</sup> DRAYTON (Hon. John,<sup>4</sup> Thomas,<sup>3</sup> Thomas,<sup>2</sup> Thomas<sup>1</sup>), born at Drayton Hall, in September, 1742, died in Philadelphia, 3 September, 1779. His education was largely obtained at Westminster School, London, and Baliol College, Oxford, after which he, in 1764, returned to South Carolina, read law, was admitted to the bar and became an active writer on political affairs. Few wrote more, or with more appeal, than he during the period which preceded the outbreak of hostilities between the mother country and her American Colonies. At first, he was not in accord with the patriotic associations then forming in the colonies. In 1769, he published a series of letters opposing them which brought forth a vigorous response from Christopher Gadsden, John McKenzie and other friends of liberty. Shortly afterward he went to England, re-published there his writings, was introduced at Court, received from King George III the appointment of Privy Councillor for the Province of South Carolina, 27 February, 1771, and, returning home, assumed that office, 3 April, 1772. Meanwhile conditions were so shaping themselves as to bring the Revolutionary crisis nearer, and the new councillor was frequently in opposition with the crown officers and judges, and aided in the passage of laws favorable to the colonies that would otherwise have been negated.*

In spite of the jealousy engendered by his course he was, on 25 June, 1774, appointed Associate Judge by his maternal uncle, Lieutenant Governor William Bull. But Judge Drayton's viewpoint changed with the changing circumstances of the times and he was gradually developed into one of the most ardent patriots produced by the South.

Just before the session of the first Continental Congress, in 1774, he brought out a pamphlet, addressed "to the deputies of North America assembled in the High Court of Congress at Philadelphia." In this, † over the signature of "Freeman," he stated the grievances of America, drew up a bill of rights, and marked out a line of conduct which that body afterward substantially adopted. So vigorous were the terms of this communication * that he was, in consequence thereof, suspended from the Council and the judgeship, but gained more and more influence in the State. He was elected a member of the Committee of Safety in 1775, was very shortly its president, and was active in advising the seizure of the provincial arsenals and British mails. In the same year he served also as president of the provincial Congress, and in March 1777, after the formation of a temporary State Constitution, he became chief justice and a privy councillor.

During the absence, in 1777, of John Rutledge, President of South Carolina as he was then termed, Chief Justice Drayton was invested with the powers of the President and those of the Vice President, then also absent. Early in 1778, he was elected a delegate to the Continental Congress, of which he continued an active member until his decease. It was while in attendance upon that body, then sitting in Philadelphia, that his death occurred, at the early age of thirty-seven years. The Pennsylvania Gazette of September 15, 1779 contains a lengthy description of his obsequies.† He designed one side of the arms and great seal of South Carolina, the other hav-

* This pamphlet so aroused the ire of his Tory uncle, Lieutenant-Governor William Bull that he wrote to the Earl of Dartmouth as follows: "It is replete with sentiments so derogatory to the Royal Prerogative and the Authority of Parliament, and the long established Constitution of Government in America, that it cannot fail to excite indignation, while the futility, tautology and triteness of arguments raise contempt."

Accordingly, at six o'clock that evening, the corpse was carried in procession to Christ Church. In 1784 he was a member of the Assembly from the parish of St. Andrew's, and, in the following year, 1785, was elected Lieutenant Governor of the State.

at Philadelphia, 25 May, 1825 and was buried in Christ Church grounds. Educated in England, he became a planter in his native State; inherited from his father, among other real estate, the "Magnolia" and "Ocean" plantations; was a man of affairs, and, in 1785, received the appointment of Commissioner or Justice of the Peace for the Charleston District.

A somewhat recent publication, "Travels of Four Years and a half in the United State of America, 1798-1802," gives the following brief picture of Thomas Drayton and his wife, the author, John Davis, having been a tutor in their family:

"Though the plantation of Mr. Drayton was immense, his dwelling was only a log-house; a temporary fabric built to reside in during the winter. [He had two residences.] But his table was sumptuous and an elegance of manners presided at it that might have vied with the highest circles of polished Europe. I make the Eulogium or rather exhibit the character of Mr. Drayton in one word, by saying he was a Gentleman; for under that portraiture I comprehend whatever there is of honour.

"Nor can I refrain from speaking in panegyric terms of his lady, whose beauty and elegance were her least qualities; for she was a tender mother, a sincere friend, and walked humbly with her God! She was indeed deserving the solicitude of her husband who would not suffer the winds of heaven to visit her face too roughly."

Owing to the premature death of his mother and his own tender years he was brought up as the foster-brother of Robert James Turnbull, the champion of Nullification. He was sent to school in England preparatory to a collegiate course, but the death of his father when he was fourteen years of age recalled him to Charleston, South Carolina.

Eventually he studied law, was admitted to the bar 12 December, 1797, and made rapid progress in the command of a most important and lucrative clientele before 1812. Meanwhile, though preeminently devoted to the legal profession, he was drawn to military service by taste and association. On 7 December, 1801, he was commissioned first lieutenant in the Ancient Battalion of Artillery, being advanced to captain-lieutenant, February, 1804. When the controversy with England, leading up to the war of 1812, had reached the acute stage, Captain Drayton, though, as a federalist opposed to it, offered his service to the government, gave up his lucrative law practice, and was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel of the Tenth United States Infantry, 12 March, 1812, receiving the Colonelcy of the Eighteenth Infantry, 25 July, following. On 18 December, 1814, he was made Inspector General. Shortly before the war closed, he was associated with Generals Scott and Macomb in the preparation of a system of Infantry Tactics, which was afterward adopted by the War Department. At the time of his resignation, 15 June, 1815, the government was about to offer him a brigadier general's commission. In 1816, General Jackson urged upon President Monroe his appointment as Secretary of War.

He resumed his law practice and in 1819 was appointed Recorder of Charleston, holding this judicial office until 1823. Of him as a judge, Chancellor Dunkin has left this record:*

"For a judicial station, he was eminently well qualified, very clear in his conceptions, a well read lawyer, ripe in judgment, with large experience, especially in commercial causes. He at once imparted to the Court a confidence among the profession, and a popularity with the community which rendered this tribunal a favorite resort, both of lawyer and suitor. On and off the Bench, he was calm and dignified in demeanor, and habitually courteous to the Bar. Altogether, he was a model Judge, and it was a privilege to practice before him."

In 1824, he was elected to Congress. He took his seat in 1825 and continued therein until 1833, having served four consecutive terms. During the period of his incumbency the tariff was even more an issue than now, though nullification was the paramount issue before Congress. Of his attitude toward these questions, a biographer, a South Carolinian by birth, wrote in 1859:

"Col. Drayton's course in Congress was such as will now command the respect, even of those who differed with him. He maintained with unflinching fidelity his hostility to the Tariff, but true and faithful as he had ever been to his country, he stood by her in, what he supposed to be, the hostile results of Nullification. He was the friend of Gen. Jackson, and felt, like him, "the Federal Union must be preserved."

President Jackson offered him the portfolio of war and also the English mission, both of which were declined. With the close of his congressional career he withdrew to private life, and, locating in Philadelphia, spent there his remaining years.

In 1839-40, he succeeded Nicholas Biddle as president of the Bank of the United States and endeavored to resuscitate it. Becoming convinced that one only practical course was open to him, albeit unpopular, he placed the remaining assets of the bank in the hands of assignees and shortly thereafter retired, thus closing the brilliant but stormy career of that institution.

Mr. Drayton was a member of the South Carolina State Society of the Cincinnati and of "the American Philosophical Society." * A portrait of him, by Morse, is in the possession of the Philadelphia branch of the family. He was buried at Laurel Hill, where a "splendid monument" † marks his resting place. The Charleston Mercury, in its issue of May 29, 1864, in its comment on his decease, ‡ said:

versity, and later in England, he was admitted to the bar and began the practice of law at Charleston. Developing an hereditary interest in public affairs he was elected lieutenant-governor of South Carolina in 1798, becoming governor by the death of Governor Rutledge, 23 January, 1800. Elected his own successor in December following, he served two years and was elected for the term of 1803-1810. While governor in 1801, he used his influence for the establishment of the State College. On 7 May, 1812, he was appointed by President Madison, judge of the United States Court for the district of South Carolina, which office he held at his decease.

Besides editing and publishing his father's Memoirs of the American Revolution, Governor Drayton published in 1794, Letters Written during a Tour through the Northern and Eastern States, which was later translated into German, and in 1802, A View of South Carolina. He was a member of the Royal Society of Sciences of Göttingen.

He married 6 October, 1794, Hester Rose Tidyman, daughter of Philip Tidyman by his wife Hester Rose. She was born 18 August, 1773 and died 31 August, 1816.

14. THOMAS FENWICK<sup>7</sup> DRAYTON (Hon. William,<sup>6</sup> Hon. William,<sup>5</sup> Hon. Thomas,<sup>4</sup> Thomas,<sup>3</sup> Thomas,<sup>2</sup> Thomas<sup>1</sup>), was born in South Carolina, 24 August, 1808, and died at Charlotte, North Carolina, 18 February, 1891.

Graduated at the United States Military Academy, West Point, in 1828, he was commissioned second lieutenant, Sixth Infantry, U. S. A., July, 1828; served on garrison duty; later on topographical duty, and resigned from the service 15 August, 1836. For a time he engaged in civil engineering work at Charlotte, Louisville and Cincinnati. From 1838 to 1861 he owned and operated a plantation in St. Luke's parish, South Carolina; was State Senator from 1853 to 1856, and president of the Charleston and Savannah Railroad Company, 1853 to 1861.

At the commencement of the Civil war he entered the Confederate service, was commissioned brigadier general, 25 September, 1861, and commanded the confederate troops at Hilton Head Island, in the Port Royal expedition, during which his brother, Captain Percival Drayton, commanded a national vessel of war. After the war, General Drayton became a farmer in Georgia, later in North Carolina, finally removing to Charlotte. In 1878 he was made president of the South Carolina Immigrant Association. He married Catherine Pope.

born in Charleston, South Carolina, 27 December, 1817, and died in Philadelphia, 10 October, 1892.

Graduated at St. Mary's College, Baltimore, in 1836, he adopted the profession of civil engineering, which he however exchanged for that of the law, and was admitted to the bar of Philadelphia, 22 October, 1842. Henceforth until his death his energies were mainly devoted to his profession, in which he acquired a high reputation and the abiding respect of his associates of bench and bar. The testimony of the Law Association of Philadelphia, as set forth in a minute at the memorial meeting of that body following his decease, is noteworthy:

"Mr. Drayton was a man of a very rare type, and unfortunately there are today very few that follow in the path which he had marked out in life. The kind of integrity that he possessed, the purity of his motives, as well as of his actions, the dignity and courtesy of his manners, his fidelity in the performance of every duty, public and private, commanded the esteem and confidence of the whole community."

He served as a member of City Councils from 1856 to 1863, and as a member of the Board of City Trusts from 1878, occupying the presidency of the Board from 1884 to 1892. In 1863 he went out with the Gray Reserves becoming sergeant of his Company. A member of the Farmers' Club and the Law Association, he was a manager of the Children's Hospital, president of the Philadelphia Society for Promoting Agriculture, vestryman of St. James' Episcopal Church, Philadelphia and later of St. Thomas' Whitmarsh, where he was sometime the accounting warden.

He married, 31 October, 1856, Harriet Coleman, daughter of James Coleman by his wife Harriet Dawson, born 4 June, 1830, and died 18 November, 1901.

Educated at Bolmar's Academy, West Chester, Pennsylvania, and under the tutorage of Dr. Williams, an English clergyman, he studied medicine under Dr. Caspar Morris and was graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, 4 April, 1845. After visiting many of the European hospitals he began the practice of his profession in Philadelphia. When the Episcopal Hospital was established Dr. Drayton was appointed one of its surgeons, which position he continued to fill with marked ability during the remainder of his life, eventually becoming president of its Medical Board. In certain of his operations he achieved particular success, one of which in 1859 had never been previously recorded in Philadelphia. Of this it has been said:* "The boldness, skill, yet perfect coolness with which this operation was performed, won the confidence of his colleagues, and established his position as an operator of the first class." He had, too, a "decided fondness for mechanics and gave his taste indulgence in the invention of apparatuses applicable to surgical purposes; designing along these lines new inventions and improvements to old ones.

For the fine arts he had a very positive taste as was evidenced by his modest collection of meritorious canvasses. He was a Fellow of the College of Physicians of Philadelphia, a member of the Medical Society of Philadelphia and other kindred organizations.*

Dr. Drayton married, first, 4 June, 1851, Sarah Hand Coleman, daughter of James Coleman by his wife Harriet Dawson and sister of Harriet Coleman, the wife of his brother, William Heyward Drayton. She was born 27 November, 1828, and died 17 June, 1852. His second marriage, 1 July, 1857, was to Mary, daughter of Patrick Brady, merchant, of Philadelphia, born in Philadelphia, 2 June, 1837, and died at Bar Harbor, Maine, 17 September, 1910.

PENNSYLVANIA GRAVESTONE INSCRIPTIONS.

"ST. JAMES'S PERKIOMEN."

COPIED BY ADDAMS S. McALLISTER, PH.D.

St. James's Episcopal Church at Evansburg, Lower Providence Township, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, had its beginnings in the settlement of Edward Lane along the Perkiomen, and had a Church of England organization as early as 1709. In 1732 William Lane, son of Edward Lane, left by will for glebe purposes forty-two acres adjoining the church, built in 1721, which bequest still provide an income for the church.*

During the past twenty years reunions of the descendants of the early members of the church have been held annually. At those reunions papers have been presented on various of the early members, which papers are preserved in a vault at the church, and copies thereof are on file in the Collections of THE GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

The following gives a complete record of all inscriptions on gravestones in the churchyard, and the compiler has made strenuous efforts to have the data here with collected correct. The material is arranged alphabetically according to families, retaining the order of the graves in each family plot.†

Amos Bollman of Lexington, March 15, 1813.
Dear Friend.

Have waited long to hear from you and now feel it my duty to write to you, tho' this letter will be a surprise and most unexpected to you and the contents of this letter equally unexpected. I might tell you without hesitation that I have volunteered my services for six months in defence of my country's rights. You might ask why I have acted thus. I shall give you my reason in a few words. * * I think it the duty of every true honest hearted American to step forward in the defence of his country's rights and if ever their assistance was needed it is at a crisis such as this. Another reason is that, I am fully sensible that I have been too much confined for the last twelve months—being frequently unwell—and I have not the least doubt but a summer's campaign will be of great use to me in regard of my health. * * I want you if you please to take a little trouble on yourself for me in case I should fall a victim to the unrelenting hand of the enemy. * * I want you to dispose of the small portion of landed property which falls to my share and collect the small sum that is in James Kelley's hands, together with the small trifle that is coming from yourself, you will make an equal distribution between my two little brothers Henry and Aaron. Remember at the same time to reserve as much in your hands as will amply pay you for your trouble. You may perhaps think this is an ungenerous device as to my other brothers but the portion is so small that it is not worth while to make many mouthfuls of it. They are my favorite brothers, I shall request you not to let it come to the ears of the two boys that I have left them anything until you ascertain for certain that I am dead. * * I shall leave word with McOwens, the man I work with, to write you a few lines as he will have a better opportunity of hearing from the troops that go out from this place than you will * * the volunteers who were taken prisoners at the late battle on the 22nd, at the river Resen, have generally returned which leaves room for others to take their place. * * Our army to the west has been unsuccessful during the last six months but I hope some good will be done this summer. I trust our cause is good and our motive pure, if so the God of heaven will be our protector and shield in the time of danger. We have had the melancholy news of your Uncle Smiley's death announced in the public prints. * * We will march from here in a week or ten days. Please give my sincere love and esteem to aunt and the family and all my friends and acquaintances. A last farewell from your sincere friend and well wisher.

To John S. Adair.

* Rev. David Denny, third son of Captain Walter Denny of Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, who was killed at the battle of Crooked Billet in the Revolution, was graduated at Dickinson College, licensed to preach by the Presbytery of Carlisle about 1792, was installed over the two congregations in Path Valley in 1794 and continued there until 1801, when he was transferred to the Falling Spring Church in Chambersburg, which charge he retained until the close of his public ministry. He died at his residence in Chambersburg, Tuesday, December 16th, 1845 in his seventy-eighth year.—Nevin's Churches of the Valley, or, an Historical Sketch of the Old Presbyterian Churches of Cumberland and Franklin Counties in Pennsylvania.

† Transcribed from a copy made from the original by Mrs. Virginia S. Fendrick, of Mercersburg.

‡ About 1767, a Presbyterian congregation was formed in Path Valley, between the Kittchtinny mountains on the east and Tuscarora mountain on the west, then in Cumberland now in Franklin County. A difference as to the location of the church edifice culminated in the formation of two congregations, "Upper Tuscarora" and "Path Valley." These were united as one charge in 1773 and were thereafter known as the Upper and Lower Churches of Path Valley. It was these congregations which Dr. Denny served from 1794 to 1800.

NOTES, QUERIES AND CORRECTIONS.

COFFIN. In answer to Coffin query in PUBLICATIONS, Vol. VII, p. 284, the following has been received:

ELIJAH COFFIN was a son of William Coffin, the elder, who, 25 March, 1767, purchased land in Philadelphia, and died before 14 Sept. 1772. The latter was the father of Sarah, wife of Abel Griffith; Mary, wife of Joseph Griffith; Elizabeth, wife of Samuel Powell, and sons William and Elijah. By deed dated 14 Sept. 1772, William Coffin, merchant and eldest son of William Coffin, deceased, conveyed his interest in land before mentioned, unto Samuel Powell, and, by deed of 3 March, 1792, Elijah Coffin, "cabinet-maker", of Falls Township, Bucks Co., conveyed his interest in said land unto William Powell of Philadelphia. Samuel Powell was licensed to marry Elizabeth Coffin, 13 June, 1771. On 8 Nov., 1760, William Coffin, Sr., and Martha his wife, were dismissed from the Montgomery Baptist Church to the Baptist Church in Philadelphia, and presumably removed to Philadelphia about that time.

WILLIAM COFFIN, Sr., was a son of Jacob Coffin, of Northampton, Bucks Co., Pa., whose will of 26 August, 1732, proved 9 August, 1742,† names sons Jacob,‡ William, and Abraham. There seems to be little doubt but that the testator was identical with the Jacob Coffing who witnessed the will of John Bolt of Philadelphia, 11 Oct. 1700.‡—J. Granville Leach.

BRADFORD. Who was the wife of Thomas Bradford (Major William, Governor William)?

THOMAS BRADFORD, born at Plymouth, Mass., circa 1657; died at Canterbury, Conn., 1 October, 1731, "aged seventy-four years." He married, circa 1681, Ann ———, who deceased before 8 May, 1705. His children so far as known were:

- i. JOSHUA BRADFORD, b. 23 Nov., 1682; published to marry, 17 Feb'y, 1711/12, Mary Brooks.—New London First Church Records.
- ii. JAMES BRADFORD, called one of "the children of my loving cousin Ann Bradford deceased" in the will of Mrs. Mary (Smith) Raymond, under date of 8 May, 1705. He died 26 March, 1762; m. (1) Edith ———; (2) Susanna Adams.
- iii. JERUSA BRADFORD, bpt. at Norwich, Conn., 28 May, 1693; m. Hezekiah Newcomb.—Newcomb Family (1874), pp. 41, 42.
- iv. WILLIAM BRADFORD, bpt. 7 April, 1695.—New London First Church Record.

ANN BRADFORD, wife of Thomas Bradford has been variously described: 1st., as Anna Fitch, supposedly daughter of Rev. James Fitch. This was however afterward discountenanced. 2nd., as Anne Smith, daughter of Nehemiah Smith of New London and Norwich, Conn. 3rd., as Ann Raymond, daughter of Joshua Raymond by his wife Elizabeth, eldest daughter of the before named Nehemiah Smith, thus making Ann Bradford the grand-daughter instead of daughter of Nehemiah Smith.

In proof that this latter statement, made through a research, covering a considerable term of years, by Henry B. Bradford, Esq., of Ellerslie, Edge Moor, Delaware, eighth in descent from the first Governor William Bradford, gives the parentage of Ann, wife of Thomas Bradford, the following abstract from the will of Mary (Smith) Raymond is submitted:

MARY SMITH, daughter of Nehemiah Smith of New London and Norwich, married Samuel Raymond of New London, bpt. at Salem, Mass., 13 July, 1645; died at New London, before April, 1704, without issue. Her eldest sister, Elizabeth Smith,* born 1641; died at New London, May, 1712, aged 71 years; married (1), 10 Dec., 1659, Joshua Raymond, bpt. at Salem, 3 March, 1639; died at New London, 24 April, 1676, the elder brother of Samuel Raymond. Elizabeth (Smith) Raymond married (2) George Dennis, q. v.

MARY (SMITH) RAYMOND executed her will 8 May, 1705; proved 7 June 1705. It is of record in New London Wills, Liber 3, folio 58. The legacies thereunder were: "Loving brother Nehemiah Smith, five pounds ten shillings . . . out of my deceased husband's Estate, not of that part thereof that belongs to me by law (by Reason my said husband disposed of so much land at Norwich my deceased father willed to me and my heirs to be at my dispose, the Intailments of which my land my said husband knew not of) to him and his heirs forever."

STOCKER. Departed this life, on the twelfth ultimo [October, 1813], in the fifty-third year of his age, John Clement Stocker, esquire, whose death is sincerely lamented by his relatives and friends, and will, doubtless, be regretted by the community at large; for, in every relation of social life, he was exemplary, affectionate and attentive; in every public appointment he was eminently faithful and useful. He discharged with unwearied assiduity the duties attached to an alderman of the city, a director of the Pennsylvania bank, and Pennsylvania insurance company, and of a vestryman of the episcopal churches of Christ Church, St. Peter's and St. James's.

The high degree of merit resulting from his liberal and extensive patronage of the poor—his firm, zealous, and undeviating patriotism—his unimpeached and incorruptible integrity, will long embalm his memory in the hearts of his surviving associates and fellow citizens.

The friend who offers this record of his virtue has long been intimately acquainted with his character and as long experienced his kindness. "When such friends part, tis the survivor dies."—Port-Folio, Third Series, Vol ii, November 1813.

\* These nieces received under the will of Mary Smith Raymond  $\frac{1}{2}$  pt. of her estate; the other  $\frac{1}{2}$ ards going to her sister Elizabeth (Smith) Raymond Dennis.

† Whatever children Nehemiah Smith may have had by his wife Ann Bourne, the will of his daughter Mary, (Smith) Raymond, shows conclusively that only three left children: "brother Nehemiah Smith," "sister Elizabeth Dennis," widow of Joshua Raymond and "sister Mehitable Abell deceased." Ann Bradford is called "my loving cousin Ann Bradford deceased," showing that she was not her sister, for, elastic as was the term "cousin" in old wills it never included sisters and brothers and usually designated nieces and nephews.—Mrs. Alice Eugénie du Pont Artiz, "Valmy," Greenville, Delaware.

LEWIS. DILL. Information is desired of the antecedents of Lewis Lewis and Jane Dill, who, having married, had the following children:

- i. JACOB LEWIS, b. 1773; removed to Wheeling, West Virginia, married there in 1804, and later lived in Kentucky.
- ii. DAVID LEWIS, moved to Philadelphia.
- iii. LEWIS LEWIS, moved to Philadelphia.
- iv. GUY LEWIS.
- v. CALEB LEWIS.
- vi. THOMAS LEWIS, married, had son Lewis Lewis, perhaps others.
- vii. HENRY LEWIS, lived in Louisiana, married, had son Lorenzo Lewis, perhaps others.
- viii. SARAH LEWIS, married Mr. Passmore.

Old documents, 1784-1795, still in possession of one branch of the family, mention lands in Northumberland, Cumberland, Bedford and Mifflin Counties. Lewis Lewis was a surveyor as stated in one of the documents.—Mrs. Allen R. Hite, Cherokee Park, Louisville, Kentucky.

HARVEY. "I, SAMUEL HARVEY, was born in Charlestownship, Chester County, Penna., June 16, 1770. My father was called out in the American Revolution in Col. Proctor's Artillery Company in the year 1777 and lay during the winter at White Marsh where he took a severe cold and returned home, after which he was taken sick with an inflammation on the lungs of which he died on the 1st day of May, 1778, leaving my mother with 7 children. Job born July 24th., 1764. Hannah, born Oct. 19., 1766. Rebecca, born July 24th., [sic] 1768. Samuel (myself), born June 16, 1770. Benjamin, born Oct. 2d., 1772. Nathan, born Nov. 29th., 1774. Elizabeth, born Aug. 17th., 1777.

"She, my mother, kept me in the summer season at school until the spring of 1785, during which time I learned to read well, write a good hand, either through Dilworth's Assistant, learned something of Geometry, Trigonometry, Surveying, Mensuration, Gauging, Dialing, Gunnery and Book keeping. In that Spring went to Philadelphia and entered as an apprentice with Wm. Kay in the Birmingham and Sheffield Warehouse, which I did not like, and returned to my place of nativity and hired myself at making hay and reaping and other work until Fall when I went up to my mother's on Juniata where I taught school. The next Spring I engaged on the 12th day of May, 1786, with George North as his clerk and store-keeper at Coventry Forge and remained one year then I went to Philadelphia and engaged with George Keely to keep his store for $60. In the Spring of 1790 George North engaged me to be a clerk at Keeptryste Furnace on the Potomac in Berkeley County near Harper's Ferry, Virginia, for $200 a year. Fall of 1792 engaged with John Evans to keep his store near Yellow Springs, Chester Co., to have part of profits. Jan. 1, 1794, after the yellow fever engaged with Jacob Baker, a wholesale dry goods merchant in Philadelphia to settle his books for $500 a year. When I opened the books of Baker and Comegys, Mr. Baker paid me at the end of the year $600 per year, and in March I married Ann North. In Fall of 1796 I entered into partnership with James Worth by the assistance of Baker and Conegys to import dry-goods and hardware, with whom I continued until Spring of 1813 and then retired from business to Germantown on the property I bought and had improved in the year 1810. April the first of this year [1813] my first wife died. In November 28-1811, I married Sarah Roop. On the 14th day of August 1814 I entered into the Bank of Germantown as President.

In March 1795 entered into the Methodist Church, 1796 made leader of a class. Received licenses to preach. Ordained a deacon.

June 16, 1836 am a member of the Methodist Church. A minister therein and a leader of a class—president of the Bank of Germantown, being 66 years old."

HENDRICKS. Abram, or Abraham, Hendricks, grandfather of the late Thomas Andrews Hendricks, Vice-president of the United States, was a Revolutionary soldier, serving as second lieutenant, Captain William Lochry's Troop of Light Horse, First Battalion, Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania Militia, under Colonel Alexander Barr, June 1777,* et seq. He was born 5 November, 1749, died 2 January, 1819, and is buried in the grounds of the old Fairfield Presbyterian Church, Ligonier Valley, Westmoreland County, having served in the State Legislature from that county; was Colonel of Third Battalion Westmoreland<sup>1</sup> Militia, 7 July, 1789,† and otherwise prominent in his locality. His wife, Ann Jamison, daughter of Thomas Jamison‡ of Westmoreland County, born 4 November, 1753; died 23 December, 1834, and is buried beside her husband. Their children, all born in Westmoreland County, were: §

Information is desired that will serve to connect Col. Abram Hendricks, 1749-1819, with the early Hendricks family of Chester, Lancaster, Cumberland, York and Bedford Counties, Pennsylvania.

The progenitor of this family, Albertus Hendricks, was a resident of Chester County as early as 1681. His will of 5 Feb'y., 1714, proved 20 Feb'y., 1715/6, named sons Tobias, Albertus, James and John, and three daughters.‡ The sons were all pioneer settlers of Lancaster County and later of York County.

TOBIAS HENDRICKS, justice of the peace and of the Courts of Chester and Lancaster Counties, 1725-1737, settled in the Cumberland valley along the great road, where he kept a hostelry near Harrisburg. He died in 1739, leaving a wife Catharine and children Henry, Rebecca, Tobias, David, Peter, Abraham and Isaac. Henry is said to have been the father of the gallant Captain William Hendricks who fell with Montgomery before Quebec. Abraham is thought to have been the great-grandfather of the late Vice-president Hendricks, but the evidence, though strongly problematical, is wanting in actual proof.

JAMES HENDRICKS, brother of Tobias, was prominent in the early days of Lancaster County, but later was of York County. He had three sons, perhaps more, John, James and Tobias. A James Hendricks was lieutenant at Fort Augusta, in 1763.

JOHN HENDRICKS, possibly youngest son of Albertus Hendricks, was living in Lancaster County in 1725, later removing to York County when he died 21 January, 1749, leaving sons, John, James, Francis and William.

Correspondence is solicited from those interested in the Hendricks name—Mrs. Sarah H. Wiggins, Indianapolis, Ind.

REVISION OF THE GENEALOGICAL RECORD OF THE SCHWENKFIELDERS. Under the Direction of The Board of Publication of the Schwenkfelder Church, 611 Reformed Church Building, Philadelphia.

A new revised edition of the Genealogy of the Schwenkfelders, edited by Samuel Kriebel Brecht, A. M., will be published in the fall of 1921. Amongst other features, this revised edition will contain a fac simile reproduction of the signatures of the immigrant Schwenkfelders to the Oath of Allegiance, as well as the location of the original homesteads and burial places of as many of the immigrant Schwenkfelders who came to Pennsylvania between 1731 and 1737 as have thus far been located. The records of more than 15,000 families will be included in this new book, together with biographical and historical sketches of the achievements of the Schwenkfelders and their descendants. A valuable contribution to the history of this people.

THE MORTONS AND THEIR KIN. A genealogy and a Source Book. By Daniel Merton, M. D., F.A.C.S., St. Joseph, Missouri 1920.

Compiled between the years 1880 and 1920 and assembled in two typewritten volumes, Volume One being the Mortons, and Volume Two being The Morton Kin.

A collection of genealogical material from original sources relating to the Morton family of Virginia and especially to John Morton and his descendants, together with a great amount of data concerning the following families kin to the Mortons: 1. Ashton, 2. Banks, 3. Benlor, 4. Barner, 5. Beale, 6. Beckwith, 7. Bellfield, 8. Blanchan, 9. Bottomley, 10. Bos, 11. Caldwell, 12. Cocke, 13. Cooke, 14. Colhoun, 15. Colston, 16. Davis, 17. Dinwiddie, 18. DuBois, 19. Edwards, 20. Eltinge, 21. Gregory, 22. Haden, 23. Hawkins, 24. Hite, 25. Johnson, 26. Jorissen, 27. Lane, 28. Means, 29. Meriwether, 30. Mothershead, 31. Mountjoy, 32. Pannill, 33. Payne, 34. Perrin, 35. Pryor, 36. Royall, 37. Slecht, 38. Smith, 39. Tarpley, 40. Terrell, 41. Thornton, 42. Van Meter, 43. Wood. There are hundreds of other surnames of interest to persons studying family history connected with Virginia, New York, Pennsylvania and Kentucky. All of which has been assembled from court records, county records, legal papers, bible records, family records, historical papers, letters, biographical sketches, funeral orations and other sources. A family tree sets out the ancestry of the author, and, of course, serves the same purpose for all descendants of this line of Mortons and their kin. There are eight hundred typewritten letter-size pages bound in two volumes of four hundred pages each. Only three copies of the work have been made, each copy being a set of two volumes. One set has been placed in the Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., one set in the Newberry Library at Chicago, Illinois, and, at the death of the author, one set will be placed in the Public Library at Kansas City. It is hoped that these records may be thus preserved against destruction, and, as far as possible, made available for every one interested in the family histories herein set forth.

The records embraced in this compilation have been collected by Mr. Morton at great expense and labor, and embrace a vast amount of genealogical material never before assembled or made available to students of family history. It has been his endeavor to place the three copies of the work where each will be accessible to the largest number.

IN OLD PENNSYLVANIA TOWNS. By Anna Hollingsworth Wharton. J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia, 1920, 352 p. 32 illus. 8'.

Miss Wharton, whose books on Colonial times and ways are ever a delight to the reader, here presents in a series of delightful chronicles, the picturesque side of many Pennsylvania villages and towns. Lancaster, Bethlehem, Columbia, York, Chambersburg, Shippensburg, Carlisle, Harrisburg, Bedford, Sunbury, Wilkes-Barre, Washington, Pittsburg, Allentown and Chester are among those treated of. Interesting stories and miniature sketches are given of many of the well-known people who walked along their quiet streets and lived their more or less eventful lives in the many-windowed fine old homes with the hospitable door-ways. The quaint charm of the every-day life of the Moravians and Dunkards has here a place. The social life of the aristocratic circles of the inland towns is well emphasized and the academic and professional worthies are handled with literary skill. The volume is indeed a valuable addition to the literature of men and women, manners, customs and the social life of earlier days and is replete with entertaining information. It has an unusually good index.

JONES WISTER'S REMINISCENCES. J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia, 1920, 459 p. 16 illus. 8'. For private circulation.

Mr. Wister's book of contemporaneous Pennsylvania and Pennsylvanians is a delight alike for those who knew the author and those who knew him not. His reminiscences embrace a long period of time. They cover, in part, the good old days when Germantown and its surroundings were practically suburban farms and the streams which are now culverts were fishing grounds for the neighborhood; when Philadelphia was younger and cricket was new. He touches interestingly on the histories of various well known clubs and social organizations; on the Civil War and what was done by the men one knew intimately, or knew of, in those perilous days when Pennsylvania was invaded and Gettysburg saved; on the iron industry and the vicissitudes and successes of several furnaces near Harrisburg. In later years the author travelled widely and his impressions and descriptions of his wanderings in strange lands are mutual and carry the reader along from place to place with the sense of companionship. Considerable is said of the noble game of cricket; Mr. Wister and his five sturdy brothers being the fathers of American Cricket. As another cricketer has said, "We do well to honor their memory, for theirs was a good work, and the world is better for it." So can it be said of Mr Wister's book, the reading public of Philadelphia, his Philadelphia, is the better for it.

PENNSYLVANIA SOCIETY OF SONS OF THE REVOLUTION, Annual Proceedings of, 1919-1920, Philadelphia, 1920, 101 p., por., 8°.

This Year Book of the Society contains the usual lists of founders, current officers, managers, delegates, standing committees and Color Guard; the proceedings of the thirty-second annual meeting with brief obituaries of forty-one members who deceased during the year, April 1919 to April 1920. A short History of the Color Guard, by William Leverett, concludes the number.

THE STORY OF THE HUGUENOTS, as contained in two addresses made before the Huguenot Societies of South Carolina and Pennsylvania, by Henry A. du Pont. Riverside Press, Cambridge, Mass. Privately printed. Octavo, boards, pp. 62. Copyrighted, 1920.

At the moment when so much proper attention is being paid to the Pilgrim Ter-Centenary, it seems signally opportune that there should be presented, by Col. du Pont, this little volume in which is set forth in concise form all of the essential facts that led up to the Huguenot immigration to the Colonies. By this exodus from Europe, this country gained groups of settlers from whom have sprung many who have loomed large in upholding the best traditions of the land of their adoption.

Memoir.

WILLIAM SUPPLEE LLOYD.

WILLIAM SUPPLEE LLOYD, a member of the Board of Directors of this Society, manufacturer and leading specialist in editions of Robinson Crusoe, died at his home in Germantown, May 5, 1920. The eldest son of William Jones Lloyd, of the Lloyd-Supplee-Walton hardware firm, by his wife Anne Elizabeth Custer, he was born at La Crosse, Wisconsin, February 12, 1860, and was descended from Robert Lloyd and his wife Lowry Jones, Welsh settlers in Pennsylvania as early as 1683. A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, Class of '82, Mr. Lloyd succeeded as a textile manufacturer at a comparatively early age and was the proprietor of the Stratford Knitting Mills, at Wayne Junction, which he operated for more than a quarter of a century. He was, however, determined not to allow business to absorb him. He worked gladly for the material things of life that he might enjoy those of the spirit and help others, and he enjoyed living best, when he saw that others about him enjoyed it too. How much he did to stimulate interest in the Navy during drab years, how strenuously he labored for the Nation during the late war, how every civic cause had his ear, all this and much more is of general local knowledge, but he was known to the literati the world over as the man who loved Robinson Crusoe. His literary tastes were broad and it was solely by accident that he became a De Foe specialist, but once aroused he combed the world for editions in every language. He is credited with possessing the most comprehensive collection of editions of Robinson Crusoe in the world, that in the British Museum possibly excepted, amounting to more than four hundred volumes, including seventy-five undated English editions, one hundred and sixty-one dated English editions, fourteen children's editions, eight in the French language, six in German, two in Latin and thirty-five in Chinese, Arabic, Hebrew, Irish, Japanese, Latin, Mexican, Yiddish and other languages, and one in shorthand. Among Mr. Lloyd's "Crusoes" are not only copies of the two issues of the first edition, April, 1719, but of each of the seventy-eight issues between 1719 and 1819; and of the "Crusoes" printed since then his list is large. At the time of his decease he was a vestryman of St. Peter's Church, Germantown, and president of the Men's Club and of the Literary Club of that Parish; one of the Council of the Colonial Society of Pennsylvania; a director of the Naval History Society, and the Navy League of the United States; chairman of the Navy Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, and a member of the Pennsylvania Society of Sons of the Revolution, the Union League, Racquet, Philadelphia Cricket and Germantown Cricket clubs of Philadelphia; the Crier, and Army and Navy clubs of New York; the Biblio Philo Club of Austin, Texas, and the Philo Biblio Society of Philadelphia. He was also deeply interested in the Pennsylvania Seamen's Friend Society, and the Seamen's Church Institute of Philadelphia. Mr. Lloyd married April 27, 1893, Ida, widow of Thomas J. Mustin and daughter of the late Henry A. Crosby of Philadelphia, who survives him with two step-sons: Captain Henry Crosby Mustin, U. S. N., and Major John Burton Mustin, U. S. A. Natures such as Mr. Lloyd's are rare, and when gone cannot be quickly forgotten. "A man of generous impulses and winning personality, and a faithful, zealous and efficient worker for God and man, he will be greatly missed in many spheres of usefulness in which his earnestness and devotion made him an important factor," says one of many testimonials.

TWENTY-NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY OF PENNSYLVANIA

READ AT THE ANNUAL MEETING, MARCH 7, 1921

To the Members of The Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania:

The Board of Directors begs to submit the following report for the past year, which has been remarkably successful.

At the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Society held March 1, 1920, the following officers and directors were elected:

President, J. Granville Leach.

Vice-Presidents, Charles P. Keith, Edward S. Sayres, John F. Lewis.

Recording Secretary, Ernest Spofford.

Corresponding Secretary, Edward Robins.

Treasurer, C. Howard Colket.

Historian, Ogden D. Wilkinson.

Directors, to serve three years, Norris S. Barratt, William S. Lloyd, David Milne.

After the election, Mr. J. Gardner Bartlett of Boston and London delivered an exceedingly interesting, informing and scholarly address, illustrated with lantern slides, on "Ancestor Hunting in England". The usual supper for the members and guests followed.

Recognizing the importance of the Society becoming an incorporated body, the Board of Directors made application to the Court of Common Pleas, No. 5, for a charter, which was duly granted, April 9th, 1920. In this connection it should be noted that the proceedings were conducted by Edward S. Sayres, Esq., one of the vice-presidents of the Society, that the master appointed to pass upon the application, Alfred G. Baker Lewis, Esq., is also a member of the Society, and that both gentlemen gave their services without charge.

At a regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors held April 19, 1920, Miss May Atherton Leach was formally elected Editor of the Publications of the Society, she having acted in this capacity since 1915.

At the following meeting, May 17, 1920, the death of Mr. William Supplee Lloyd, a faithful and efficient member of the Board, was noted with keen regret and profound sorrow.

At the meeting of January 17, 1921, the passing of Miss Anne Hannum Cresson, a learned genealogist, a valued friend, a member of the Society since September 16, 1894, and a member of the Associate Committee of Women, was announced with a deep sense of loss. At the following meeting, held February 21, 1921, announcement was unofficially

THE FIRST ANNUAL REPORT OF THE ASSOCIATE COMMITTEE OF WOMEN

READ AT THE ANNUAL MEETING, MARCH 7TH, 1921

To the Board of Directors of the Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania:

Your Associate Committee of Women was called together for organization by its Chairman, Mrs. James Mifflin, Wednesday, February 4, 1920, at the rooms of The Historical Society of Pennsylvania. Those present at that meeting were: Mrs. Henry Pemberton, Jr., Mrs. Harry Rogers, Miss Margaret R. Grundy, Mrs. Louis F. Benson, Miss Cresson, Miss Leach, Mrs. Mifflin in the Chair. Letters explaining absence were received from Mrs. John Scott, Jr., Mrs. C. Howard Colket, Mrs. Alvin A. Parker and Miss Magee.

After the election of Miss Leach as secretary, Mrs. Mifflin explained that, the Associate Committee had been formed to further the ends for which the Society itself was organized, and, in this connection, stated that the most immediate need of the Society was an increased membership to aid the treasury by an increased number of annual dues and life-membership fees. In the informal discussion which followed, attention was directed to the work of copying and abstracting of church, county and other public records, already accomplished by the Society, of which, too much cannot be said in commendation. Attention was also called to the desirability of the Committee making an earnest effort to aid the work by securing, additional church records, or other similar manuscript records for copying. The scope of the annual Publication was also outlined and its need of genealogical manuscripts, Bible and other records for printing emphasized.

In the matter of members, the Committee has to March 7, 1921, secured fifty-three annual members, six life memberships and has transferred two from annual to life members—a total of 61.

Two additional general meetings of the Society have been carried out by the Committee. The first, an afternoon tea-party at Walnut Grove Farms, Croyden, Pennsylvania, made possible through the generous hospitality of Miss Margaret Ridgway Grundy, who, with her mother, Mrs. William H. Grundy, acted as hostess. Those who wended their way to the beautiful banks of the almost classic Neshauniny, on that fifteenth of June afternoon will recall with pleasure the varied programme—the brief address of welcome by the President of the Society, the short but comprehensive sketch, "Bristol and its Environs", by one who knew and loved it and them—Miss Grundy. The delightful letters from Washington Irving to Thomas A. Cooper of Bristol, the widely known actor of yester years, charmingly read by Mrs. Griffin a great-granddaughter of President Tyler and of Mr. Cooper. The letter of a Woodbury member of the Society of Friends to her Sister, descriptive of an evening party of about 1825, read by the Committee's Secretary. The verses of Hon. Nicholas Biddle dedicated to Miss Sarah Lukeus Keene of Bristol, read by his grand son, Edward Biddle, Esq. After which came tea with its accessories, served in the open, topped off with strawberries freshly picked from the fragrant old-time garden adjoining.

On January twentieth, last past, the Committee invited the Society to commemorate the two hundred and thirty-eighth anniversary of the establishment of Friends Meeting in Philadelphia—the records of this and subsequent meetings being the primary source of genealogical information in Pennsylvania. On this occasion Miss Anna J. Magee was the generous hostess, Mrs. William Cameron Sproul the guest of honor, the assembly rooms of the Historical Society the noble setting, with Mrs. Millin and her committee receiving the members and guests. Mrs. Millin opened the meeting by requesting Edward S. Sayers, Esq., one of the vice-presidents, to take further charge of the evening by introducing the four-minute speakers and their topics, which were:

Reading of Governor Sproul's Letter regretting his inability to be present, as well as his inability to formally meet Mrs. Sproul, read by the Society's President, Colonel Leach.

Address by the President of the Society—The Difference between The Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania and other Genealogical Societies.

*The fact commemorated—The Philadelphia Meeting of Friends—*Mr. Albert Cook Myers.

*Friends Meetings in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, prior to 1700—*Mrs. Charles Roberts, President of the Friends Historical Society.

Chester County Friends and some of their peculiarities. This was touched upon by John P. Lewis, Esq., a vice-president of the Society. Mr. Lewis materially added to the general interest by passing among the audience an illuminated Chinese pedigree-roll of great age, and a sixteenth century copy of the Scriptures, showing in unusual detail the genealogy of Jesus Christ.

*Applied Genealogy—*Mrs. James Starr, President of the Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Dames of America.

*Johan Printz, Governor of New Sweden and the Swedes on the Delaware, 1643-1645—*Thomas Willing Balch, Esq.

An episode of the Academy Inaugural Ball of January 20, 1857, as seen from the newspapers of January, of that year. Read by the Committee's secretary.

*By request, the letter from the Woodbury Friend, read at the June tea-party—*Re-read by Mrs. Henry Pemberton, Jr.

*Helmets—*Captain Ogden Dungan Wilkinson, Historian of the Society, briefly described his unique collection of overseas helmets and head-wear which temporarily ornamented the book-cases in the Assembly room of the Historical Society.

It is with deep sorrow that the Committee reports the loss by death of Miss Anne H. Cresson, the accomplished genealogist, who enjoyed her connection with the Society and Committee and gave freely of her self to further the interests of both. Hers was the kindly-humorous, gentle, yet positive spirit, whose passing makes the world a poorer place for those who loved her and remain. Unofficially, the Committee learned that Miss Cresson had bequeathed the sum of one thousand dollars to the Society, and, at its February meeting, after much expressed appreciation of her generous gift, it was moved and duly seconded that a recommendation be made to the Board of Directors that this legacy should, when received, be thereafter known as the ANNE HANNUM CRESSON MEMORIAL FUND.

Respectfully submitted,

SPECIAL NOTICE

* With a view to widen the usefulness of and the interest in the annual Publication, the Committee thereon earnestly solicits from the members of the Society: unpublished journals or diaries prior to 1825, which may bear on the economic or social life of the Colony or Commonwealth; Bible records; church registers; gravestone inscriptions; or brief family histories or biographical sketches of Pennsylvanians. All such material will be carefully considered by the Committee and manuscripts promptly returned should the subject-matter not be germane to the purposes of the Publication.

Notices of genealogies in preparation relating to Pennsylvania families, or by Pennsylvanians, are also requested for listing in the Publication; as are notices of gatherings of Family Associations existing for the collection of genealogical data.

Errors in printed genealogical works come to the attention of every investigator. To in some measure prevent the perpetuation of such errors, the Committee opens the columns of the Publication to all members who will make corrections thereof, with authorities therefor over their signatures. The increasing number of magazines devoted to the study of genealogy, together with the multiplying county and town histories, as well as individual family histories, renders some such course imperative. It is hoped that the Society as a whole will give all possible aid to the furtherance of accuracy.

This Society was organized in 1892, "for the promotion of genealogical research, the procuring of transcripts of all official records affording genealogical information, the collection and preservation of registers of births, marriages and deaths kept by religious societies or individuals, and everything pertaining to the history of persons connected with America. The collections shall be the property of The Historical Society of Pennsylvania."

During the thirty years of its existence the Society has collected over $50,000, and has on its shelves 406 manuscript volumes. It is impossible with the present number of members to keep pace with the decay and loss accruing from varying causes to the uncopied records; therefore it is greatly desired to increase the membership and thereby the usefulness of the Society. Annual dues are $5.00, and the life-membership fee is $50.00. Library Bonds are accepted for life-membership.

The money derived from life-memberships is invested, the income alone being used. The Publications are sent free to members, and life members are entitled to all available publications. Vol. 1, Nos. 2 and 3 and Vol. III, No. 1, are out of print.

THE HUMPHREYS FAMILY.

BY THE HONORABLE HAMPTON L. CARSON.

AN ADDRESS DELIVERED BEFORE THE GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY OF PENNSYLVANIA, AT THE ANNUAL MEETING, MARCH 6, 1922.

Ladies and Gentlemen: Your Presiding Officer's introduction is embarrassing, because I noted that he was uncertain as to the particular subject he wished me to talk upon. I recollect being at a University gathering, where the Reverend George Dana Boardman proposed as a subject, "The Founding of the University of Bologna in the Eleventh Century, with Personal Reminiscences by Mr. Carson." You, Sir, have saved me from such a situation by carrying notes which, though in your pocket, commit me to a definite theme. I do not know who it was, perhaps it was your Secretary, who suggested that I should talk about the HUMPHREYS Family. At all events that is my subject.

I am not going to give a genealogical table nor attempt to draw a genealogical tree. We all know what such trees look like, and there are only certain particular buds on distant branches which can be of interest to each individual in an audience. I shall confine myself to representatives of six generations of the Humphreys Family, illustrating the sturdiness of the parent stock and the character of the achievements in each generation of that remarkable family.

In order that you may have before you in a general way a picture of the Humphreys Family, it occurs to me that I can appeal to the recollection of everybody in the room of the old house which long stood on the east side of Thirteenth Street just above Spruce, and which gave way but eighteen months ago to a garage. For many years, prior to its occupation by the Junkers, Miss Borie lived there. Prior to Miss Borie's occupancy, an old gentleman of the name of Charles Humphreys, who died in the year 1873, had lived there for over fifty years. It was an old-fashioned three-story brick dwelling house, with dormer garret windows, somewhat moderate in its rooms and but two rooms in depth, with a low two-story back building, all bordered on the south by a garden of exceeding beauty. When you passed along Thirteenth Street and looked through the perforated iron grill that was set in the gate, you would observe old-fashioned flower-beds bordered by box-wood, a clinging and fragrant yellow jasmine vine on the southern wall, grape vines and trellis-work of wistaria, in the rear; in the spring, beautiful beds of tulips, succeeded by flowers in season, and a bit of turf that was kept closely cropped, rivaling any of our finest lawns. That garden was a source of perpetual delight to those who were privileged to enter it. My own childish recollection runs back to it with affection. I have seen there not only Mr. Humphreys, who was a flour merchant, and his genial wife, a dame of the olden school, but his guests who frequently were his opponents in a game of backgammon, Commodore Dale, a son of Richard Dale who was first lieutenant under Paul Jones on the deck of the Bon Homme Richard as she grappled with the Serapis; Admiral Turner of the Civil War, General Humphreys and General Isaac J. Wistar; so that, during my boyish days, I would hear stories of the sea and of the land, of the Army and of the Navy. Mr. Humphreys would drive twice a week, on Sundays and on Thursdays, out to his father's place, the Humphreys farm on the Haverford Road directly back of Ardmore, with an old-fashioned pebble-dashed house which many of you have admired, where the Tilghmans have been in residence for so many years that it is almost thought to be a Tilghman possession, but it still belongs to the Humphreys' Estate. Between the house on Thirteenth Street and the old pebble-dashed house on the Haverford Road Mr. Humphreys spent his life. He had there a model farm, with a wonderful herd of cattle, whose cows and calves were curried twice a day as though they had been horses. Not a weed was permitted to grow in any spot of the place. Crops were exceedingly fine, the clover crops particularly so. There was a wonderful semicircle of great beech trees in a dense woods which even now cuts the western sky like a half-moon, presenting to our State Forester, if he should go there at this hour, a specimen of an old Colonial grove still flourishing in its primeval strength.

All through the Township of Haverford, as it was called in Delaware County, the Humphreys were numerous. The old name of Bryn Mawr was Humphreyville, many of the family residing in that neighborhood, and if you should ascend the hill of the Quaker Meeting House, which was the second Meeting House erected in this part of the State, the first being at Merion, you will find along the wall of the burying ground the gravestones of members of the Humphreys family, extending in double rows. There they sleep, still ruling our spirits with their sceptres from their urns. You cannot enter that old Quaker burying-ground without being impressed by the fact that in former days the Humphreys family dominated that section of Delaware County. It is of that family that I shall speak.

You, Mr. Chairman, well remember certain members of the family. Old Miss "Patty" Humphreys, was within your recollection. I am getting back, you see, somewhat to the last century. I belong to the last century myself, that is the greater part of me. Miss Patty Humphreys was the maiden sister of the old gentleman whom I have described. I am quite sure that if Mr. Sayres ever tasted her scrapple, her sausages and her pumpkin pies he would be more anxious to leave this earth in search of where she now is and repeat his experiences than his present quiet attitude indicates.

The name of Humphreys is of Norman origin and can be traced for a thousand years. In Domesday Book it appears as Humfridus, with a Latin termination, afterwards spelled H-u-m-f-r-e-y and sometimes H-u-m-p-h-r-y. I have seen it also "i-e-s", but the particular branch of the family I am speaking of to-night spells it "e-y-s". About the year 1340, when the Herald's College was established, there were at least six coats-of-arms relating to branches of the Humphreys Family registered. One of those, a lion rampant with dexter paw on the head of a nag, represented the Conquest of Wales by one branch of the family, and there for six hundred years the family held possession of lands which their ancestors had got by force of arms and by valor.

The first ancestor to whom I intend to allude was Samuel Humphreys, the son of Hugh Ap Humphreys, who in 1606 had married Elizabeth Powell, daughter of John Powell and Sibill Gwyn of Llanwdlwn. Samuel Humphreys died in Merionethshire in Wales. He had married Elizabeth Rhys or Rees, according to a difference in spelling. They had six or seven children, the oldest son being Daniel, whose line of descent is the only one that I intend to illustrate because, although the family has had numerous branches, it is only in running down the direct line of Daniel that I find public services rendered by members of the family. The other branches, while estimable in private life, were not prominent in the affairs of the world. Daniel Humphreys, in 1682, his father being dead five years, came to this country. He carried with him a certificate of good character from the Quarterly Meeting in Wales. In the following year, 1683, he was followed by his widowed mother, Elizabeth, with her remaining children, and they all settled in the Township of Haverford, the name Haverford being derived from Aber Ford, which means above the ford or above the confluence of streams. The township in South Wales which bears that name had a castle dating back as far as 1113, which was visited by Bishop Baldwin in the year 1152, so it appears that they were people of substance and character as well as of achievement. Daniel welcomed his mother, his brothers and his sisters and established them about seven miles west of our City Hall.

To get the exact position in your minds: go directly south of Ardmore and strike the Haverford Road; turn down to the left and find this old pebble-dashed house standing on the north side of Cobb's Creek, below the new Golf Grounds which have been placed there in recent years. Daniel married Mary, the daughter of Thomas Wynne, the first Speaker of the First Provincial Assembly of Pennsylvania and the ancestor of Hugh Wynne, about whom Doctor S. Weir Mitchell has written so charmingly. He built a very substantial house, long known as "The Mansion House," of brick and of stone with a hipped roof, with windows scattered about in very irregular fashion, with small glass panes in leaden frames. That house stayed in the possession of the family until 1810, when Dennis Kelly, a miller, who had mills along the line of Cobb's Creek, purchased it, and about the year 1860 or 1862 the house was torn down and that memorial of the Humphreys Family vanished. Daniel and Mary had six or seven children. One of them, Edward, was particularly distinguished as a doctor, who practiced physies and surgery with much success and public approval. He left no descendants.

Before alluding to the son who carried the line down into the next generation, which is the one on which I particularly wish to dwell, let me call your attention to another childless son of Daniel who reached great distinction, a man of high integrity, character and purpose, free from the arts of the politician, but, differing in judgment from many of his countrymen, abruptly terminated his public career. I refer to Charles Humphreys, who in 1763 was chosen a member of the Provincial Assembly and remained such until 1776. He was one of the seven delegates chosen to represent Pennsylvania in the first Continental Congress, which met in Old Carpenter's Hall in September, 1774. He served also in the Continental Congress of 1775 and the early one of 1776, with John Dickinson, Edward Biddle, Thomas Willing, Andrew Allen, Robert Morris and James Wilson. He participated actively in all the measures which the Continental Congress found it necessary to adopt. He signed with others the Declaration of Rights representing the grievances of which the Colonies complained. He also signed the Non-intercourse Proclamation, and in every way participated until it came to the crucial point of voting for the Declaration of Independence. Those of you who have read the records will recall that, in November 1775, the Pennsylvania Legislature by express resolution instructed its members in Congress not to sanction or support any measure which looked towards a separation of the Colonies from the Crown, and that restriction was not removed until the 8th of June, 1776. I cannot stop to go into the niceties of Pennsylvania history, but Pennsylvania's position in the matter of the Declaration of Independence is entirely misunderstood and misapprehended by people outside of the State and sometimes by people within it. They forget that the battle for popular rights had been waged and won in the long struggle between the people, represented by David Lloyd and Benjamin Franklin, on the one side, and on the other by the representatives of governors appointed by the Penns who owned the soil in fee as well as possessing limited sovereignty under the charter. That battle had raged for over seventy years on our soil. We had won in Pennsylvania a recognition of popular rights which the other Colonies did not possess, so we had not the same grievances the other Colonies had and were not suffering from weight of oppression in the same sense. Besides that, there was in the charter of William Penn a distinct reservation which did not exist anywhere else, of the right of the Crown to tax the colonists without their consent. With that background, you can easily understand the attitude of a man like John Dickinson, who happened to be Charles Humphreys' third cousin because his mother traced back descent from Thomas Wynne. John Dickinson expressly stated the reason why he did not vote for the Declaration. So did Edward Biddle, and Mr. Thomas Willing Balch explained this matter last November when talking about Thomas Willing in this hall. These men were not unpatriotic, not at all. They gave everything they had to the cause, but they differed in judgment from the majority as to the time or necessity for the act of Independence. They said that without a French alliance, without some preparation on the part of the Colonies for an effective resistance to the power of the Crown, it was an act of madness to sever precipitately the tie of the Colonies to the Throne. Therefore they declined to sign. Baneroff declares that it was an act of the highest moral courage. Charles Humphreys was one of that kind. He erred in judgment you may say, because the tide of popular opinion went the other way, but he was not a politician and refused to surrender his convictions. For this reason he was left out of Congress on a new election. I ought to say also that Robert Morris and James Wilson, both of them signers of the Declaration of Independence, originally agreed in sentiment with Dickinson, Willing, Allen, Humphreys and Biddle. Charles Humphreys passed from the public service, but lived a long life highly respected. I have seen some of his books and read some of his letters but he did not enter upon the discussion of the question I have touched. The family has always cherished a high regard for his memory, and his grave is in the old Haverford burying ground.

His elder brother, Joshua, was not remarkable for any act of public service, though highly esteemed in private life. I mention him because he was the father of Joshua Humphreys, born in 1751, who lived until 1838, dying at the ripe age of eighty-seven. The younger Joshua is the man to whom we are indebted for the American Navy, for he was the first naval constructor in the United States, the man who made it possible for our seamen to carry the flag unashamed and victorious on the sea. His was the house—that old pebble-dashed house now standing on Haverford Road—and it was to that house that his son Charles went, leaving his garden gate at Thirteenth and Spruce Streets to drive out to Haverford Road. Joshua Humphreys as a young man was apprenticed to a shipbuilder and displayed remarkable talent even in the early years of the Revolutionary War. He planned the frigate Randolph, that gallant little American ship which, carrying the flag under Captain Nicholas Biddle, in September, 1777, was attacked by the Yarmouth, a British ship twice her size. In a desperate battle when Biddle found himself doomed to defeat, because overpowered by a more powerful adversary, rather than strike his flag he blew up his ship and perished with all his crew. Humphreys also designed many of those little ships commanded by the first of our American admirals, Esek Hopkins, who carried the Rattlesnake Flag with Paul Jones as one of his subordinate officers. Think of what that little fleet did, designed in part by this Philadelphia Quaker who was put out of Meeting because of the support he was giving to the cause of the Colonies. The American fleet captured 800 British vessels of all kinds during the War of the Revolution, with five thousand prisoners. What splendid exploits! When the Revolution was over, the French Revolution soon followed, and later the Berlin and Milan Decrees were beginning to agitate the world; the Tripolitan War hung like a dark cloud over us. At this time Humphreys foresaw the absolute necessity for building up an American navy. He addressed a letter to Robert Morris in which he sketched out his plans. I have facsimiles of all his letters, and his correspondence in this book which I have on the desk beside me; the originals are upstairs in our treasury vaults. His letters justify the claim that is made for him as being the founder of the American Navy. Without going into technical niceties—I am not a naval man nor a ship carpenter, so I can only explain the general idea—his thought was this, a bold thought and one characteristic of his genius. He knew perfectly well that the English navy was the most powerful afloat, that it could overpower us in any part of the world. We could not build ships fast enough to match them ship for ship, so Humphreys' thought was this: build six frigates and let each one of those frigates be more than a match for any two English ships that she can meet. Let them also have special sailing qualities so that if chased or overpowered by more powerful squadrons they can "show their heels", in nautical phrase, or sail right away, or else, if obliged to face the guns of British men-of-war, let them be capable of so acting in rolling seas or in blowing weather, that when the English gun-deck is half-submerged, the American deck will be steadily above water and can rake the English ship with its fire. Those were his three objects, fast sailing qualities, steadiness of gun-deck, and heavier armament for the raking of hostile ships. In effect he said, "If we can accomplish that as builders, then we can safely leave it to our captains to do the rest." Such was his genius. The Act of 1794, passed by the Congress of the United States in Washington's Administration, authorized Henry Knox, the Secretary of War, because in those days there was no Secretary of the Navy, to have Humphreys plan those frigates. He planned them, The Constitution or Old Ironsides, The Congress, The United States, The Constellation, The Chesapeake and The President. Hear what those six ships did. The War of 1812 had not yet opened, but those ships carried Decatur, Truxton, Bainbridge, Hull, Stewart and Jones through the glories of the war with Tripoli, and later crowned themselves with victory in the War of 1812, although ten or fifteen years old. They were built of live oak and red cedar, bolted and riveted together, and were not brittle shells, as ships had been prior to that time. They were a little over-weighted as to their guns. It was found necessary to diminish the number of guns on their decks because they rolled too heavily in a rough sea, and hog-backed the ships. In the War of 1812 there was captured 1500 British ships and 12,000 prisoners.

When I was a boy I saw over the entrance to the old dining room in the rear of Joshua Humphreys' house a model that he had carved with his own penknife of one of his model ships. The exquisite curvature of lines was such that below the water the ship's keel cut the water like a knife. Hence they were as swift as they could be. Above, they were steadied against rolling by bulging sides which gave them a steady gun-deck, and they carried a weight of metal which the British did not expect. In other words, the British imagined that they were going to fight eighteen-pound guns and found they were really fighting twenty-fours. They thought they were fighting thirty-five guns. In point of fact they were fighting fifty, and the crushing effect on the British Navy was a surprise. When the ships first appeared in the Mediterranean, modelled on the Humphreys' plan, Nelson said, "Those American ships will cost the British Navy very anxious thought in the future." Nelson did not live to be engaged in the War of 1812 and face those ships, but his prophecy came true.

Just an instance or two I will take of their behavior. Old Ironsides was the most glorious ship in the Navy as to her sailing and fighting qualities. You often see pictures of her in her fight with the Guerriere. When the Constitution first encountered the Guerriere, the Guerriere was part of an English squadron of six large ships. Captain Isaac Hull, who then commanded her, saw at a glance that he could not fight a squadron, so he determined to put the sailing qualities of his vessel to the test. He drew off and ran away from them. They pursued in line. Soon they were spread out. He saw then that he could pick his antagonist if he could get the British ships at a sufficient distance from each other so as to give him the advantage of the wind. Think of what it was to command a ship in those days. I am talking of sailing vessels, not of steam. There is comparatively little merit now in selecting positions for a battleship because steam will put a ship against wind and waves in any position desired, but before the days of steam, when the wind blew hard and a captain had to get the weather gauge of his enemy and manoeuvre in such a way as to rake him with a broadside and not be raked in turn, it required the supremest degree of seamanship. Hull had it, and he had the ship, and he had the builder of Philadelphia behind him who had planned it all. The result was that he was drawing away from the British squadron just to his own taste, when a dead calm fell upon him. Of course, even swift ships cannot sail in a calm, and the difficulty was double, for the calm had not struck the pursuing squadron; the British began to overtake him. Hull, with quick thought, looked ahead and saw rough water, indicating a breeze, ahead of him a mile away; instantly he put out his boats, put strong men in them carrying anchors and long ropes; the boats were rowed until the lines were taut, anchors were dropped, and the ship was then kedged or pulled right up to the anchors; the operation was repeated and the ship was drawn through the smooth water before the British got on to the device. Hull got into the ruffled water and began to recover the wind. By that time the British squadron was becalmed. Later, when the Guerriere was far ahead, Hull wheeled and in less than an hour knocked the British frigate all to pieces. The Constitution, "Old Ironsides," had achieved her first victory. Under Bainbridge she scored again by capturing The Java. Her greatest exploit was, when commanded by Captain Charles Stewart, she fought two British ships—The Cyane and The Levant—at the same time, and was manoeuvred in such a way that she sailed between them, raking first one and then the other before they could wheel and rake her. All that was due to the sailing qualities of the vessel, and the seamanship that directed her.

The other ships had glorious records. Decatur's ship, the United States, conquered the Macedonian, after bitter battle. The President, commanded by Truxton, conquered the Insurgent. I need not dwell on these, but these achievements are largely to be credited to Joshua Humphreys, the first naval constructor of the United States. He remained in office until President Jefferson came in, and Jefferson, being strongly opposed to the Navy, practically asked him to retire. Robert Smith, Secretary of the Navy, wrote a letter of regret to Humphreys on his retirement couched in graceful terms, especially so considering that it came from a reluctant Secretary. I will not stop to read this letter, but I will now read one of Humphreys' own letters, to indicate the dignity of the man and how he insisted on his claim to be recognized as the Constructor of the Navy. I dwell on this for the reason that occasionally there springs from some other part of the country a claim that Josiah Fox was the real constructor of the Navy of the United States and that Humphreys was not entitled to priority. Here is a letter which Humphreys addressed to Josiah Fox on the 25th of July, 1797. Fox was a clerk in the Marine Department. He was under orders from Humphreys. Being a bumptious individual, he undertook to usurp authority that did not belong to him, and wrote a letter to Humphreys, which was answered in this way: "Sir, I received your letter of yesterday purporting to tell me that the Secretary of War is very desirous that the frigate Constellation should be launched in the safest manner and with as little expense to the United States as possible. Judging that your [my] advice may be necessary to assist Mr. Stoddard, acting for the Navy, in the performance of that service, he desires me," etc. . . . "I have waited on the Secretary. It is with pleasure and with alacrity I shall always receive and obey while in the service of the United States any orders of the Secretary of War, but, Sir, I cannot receive hereafter or attend to any directions from you, although directed by the Secretary of War, while you style yourself naval constructor. You must know that my station in the service of the United States requires no direction from a naval constructor. You also know that I am the head of that Department. When you direct a letter hereafter to me let it be done in your own proper style as clerk in the Marine Department." Listen to the closing sentence: "Whenever the Secretary deems my services no longer necessary, you may then, to other persons, assume such title as your vanity may suggest. I am, Sir, Joshua Humphreys."

I return to the old house in which Mr. Humphreys after his retirement (he retired in 1803) lived until 1838. The house, which is on Haverford Road, as I have already said, is an exceedingly interesting one, built in three parts. The rear consisted of the original cabin dating back to about 1730. The second part was of later date, about the time of the Revolution, and the pebble-dashed front, which is three stories high with a garret beneath the roof, was built in the year 1812. The stairways, the walls, and the deep window panelings are of curled maple, beautifully polished. All the doors are of solid curled maple. The house itself was furnished with exquisite mahogany highboys, lowboys, pie-crust tables and mirrors, which latter were brought from France by Clement Humphreys, the elder brother of Joshua, who had been sent by John Adams on a mission to France, and who later perished at sea. As I have mentioned Clement, let me give you one little instance of his spirit when a boy. While the frigate United States was building, the editor of the Aurora, a newspaper in Philadelphia, came out with a furious attack on President Washington. Clement Humphreys, who was but nineteen years of age at that time, finding the editor of the paper, Mr. Duane, walking about the shipyard, caned him for the libel. He was prosecuted, brought into court and tried for assault and battery. He said, "Yes, I am guilty. I caned the editor, undoubtedly." A verdict was rendered against him, and a fine imposed. Citizens of Philadelphia paid it for the boy, and you will find a glowing account of the incident in the papers of the day. It is said that he was sent later to France by John Adams out of admiration for a young Federalist who had courage enough to cane a Democratic editor.

While Joshua Humphreys lived in the old house until 1838, he had a son Samuel, who was the Chief of Construction in the Navy Yards of the United States from 1816 until 1846. Samuel Humphreys inherited all the talents of his father for shipbuilding. He planned many of the successful ships of the period, one of them the famous fighting frigate Franklin, which at the time was the largest fighting craft afloat. Let me give a sample of the character of Samuel. The morning after one of the Wistar parties (and we all know what Wistar parties are) in the year 1824, Mr. Richard Peters, the son of Judge Peters, and Reporter of the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, with his office on South Sixth Street, was visited in his office by a young law student in somebody else's office. I wish I knew who the young law student was. He has not disclosed his personal identity but he wrote a most remarkable account of this visit. He was sent by his preceptor to Mr. Peters and found with him Judge Hopkinson of the United States District Court and Mr. Izakoff, the Russian Ambassador. After talking over some unfinished conversation which had been started the night before at the Wistar party, the Ambassador said to Mr. Peters, "How is it that American ships are superior to those of any other navy in the world so far as their sailing qualities are concerned?" Mr. Peters replied, "Better built, and better planned." "Well," said the Ambassador, "the Czar, Alexander, who sent me here, is very anxious to build up a navy, and has commissioned me to find the finest shipbuilder in the world. Do you know who the builder of those ships happens to be?" "Yes," said Mr. Peters. "He is a client of mine, Sam Humphreys." "Can I meet him?" "Yes, you can meet him, if you wish to."

"Won't you make an appointment, Mr. Peters?" "What hour will suit you?" "Ten o'clock to-morrow morning." The student was asked to carry a note to Sam Humphreys. He begged to be permitted to be present at the time the interview took place, and he says he was there. At ten o'clock Mr. Humphreys came in. A minute or two afterwards came the Ambassador. They were introduced to each other. The Ambassador said: "Mr. Humphreys, I am commissioned to employ a shipbuilder for the Russian Government. I can offer you a salary of sixty thousand dollars a year, a town house, a country house, a coach and all supplies." Humphreys said: "This is a very great surprise to me. Let me think it over until to-morrow morning," and he bowed his way out. The Ambassador thought that was a favorable omen. Mr. Peters remarked, "Perhaps, you think so." The next morning Humphreys returned, bowed very politely to the Ambassador and said: "The salary is far larger than I could earn. It is beyond my desires. I have but one house. That is where I do my work at the Navy Yard. I always walk and have no need of a coach. I do not know whether my talents are as great as my friend Mr. Peters has described, but I do know, that whether they be great or small, they belong to my country and I will not sell them." The writer asks, "In the history of dazzling offers, where is there a match for this patriotic and dignified refusal?" Remember that it was in a time of peace. There was no international objection to acceptance. Had Humphreys been an ordinary commercial contractor, he would have said, "Yes, I can build ships for a foreign nation. We are not at war." The Ambassador was staggered. Mr. Peters mentioned it to Judge Hopkinson. Judge Hopkinson said, "I knew it. He would not have been his father's boy if he had accepted that offer." Such was Samuel Humphreys.

Up to this time the successive generations of the Humphreys Family had been represented by men and women of pure Welsh blood, men of Welsh descent but of Norman origin, transmuted through the conquest of Wales and by long residence in Wales and intermarriage with Welsh women into pure Welsh blood. A new strain now appears.

Samuel Humphreys married Letitia Atkinson, a rather striking name. The circumstances of the marriage are romantic. Andrew Atkinson, the father of Letitia, was of Irish blood. His father was Thomas Atkinson of Cavan Garden, Bally Shannon, County Donegal, who had married Jean Murray, a descendant of Sir Archibald Murray of Scotland, the Seventh Baron in line from that James Murray who had been of the Black Barony that adhered to the Pretender. It is said that young Thomas Atkinson, then an ensign in the British service, as he marched past Edinburgh Castle saw Jean Murray on the battlements, a girl of sixteen, he a boy of nineteen, and instantly fell in love with her. They were introduced. They eloped in less than six months. He brought his bride to this country. He worked his way up. He purchased a plantation on the banks of the St. John's River in Florida following the cession of Florida by Spain to this country. He had a daughter Letitia, who was at Dungeness, the house of the widow of General Nathaniel Greene, on Cumberland Island outside of Savannah, where young Sam Humphreys had been sent by his father Joshua to inspect live-oak timbers for battleships. Later she became his bride. Thus it was that Letitia Atkinson and Samuel Humphreys became the parents of the last representative of the family that I shall mention, Andrew Atkinson Humphreys. You see the origin of his name. He was born in the year 1810 and died in the year 1883. You may notice the remarkable longevity of the various people I have referred to. I will be brief about General Humphreys. I could talk about him indefinitely. I think he had the strongest and handsomest face I ever saw on a soldier. His sword is on exhibition in yonder hall. He had, as you now observe, a mixture of blood which his forbears did not possess. They had a pure Welsh strain with some Norman. He had Norman, Welsh, Irish and Scotch—a pretty good mixture, and it asserted itself in his character. He was educated at the Germantown Academy, the old building which stands on School House Lane just below Green Street at the present time. He was caned there, was too spirited to submit to indignity, and would not go back to school, so he was sent to a boys' school at Nazareth under the tuition of the Moravians. From there he went to West Point and graduated as an officer, thirteenth in his class of thirty-five. He then became attached to the Army in various capacities, as an engineer, served in the Florida Seminole War with distinction, and was in two battles in the Seminole War. But his great service, prior to the Civil War, was as an engineer, and his great achievement, which cannot be dwelt upon in too emphatic terms, was the exploration and mapping of the Valley of the Mississippi and the devising of means by which the destructive floods of the Mississippi and Missouri should not desolate that vast valley. When we think that the Valley of the Mississippi is as extensive as all Europe, cutting out Russia alone, and that it is the seat of future empire, using the word empire in the sense in which Bishop Berkley used it, as representing not imperial or political power but a field of authority embracing grandeur and strength—then can we realize the value of the work; he rescued that region from the devastation of floods and performed a service which was afterward carried out by the Eades jetties about the mouths of the Mississippi and the Gulf of Mexico. That work has been written of, spoken of, and translated into many languages; the engineers of the world have exhausted the vocabulary of praise upon it. Then came the Civil War. He commanded first in a subordinate position, but his great strength lay in his engineering capacity. He was a topographical engineer. He had an eye for topography, and could place troops in position and mark out lines of strategy. He closed the lines at the Battle of Malvern Hill in such a way as to prevent the retirement of the Army of the Potomac from the Peninsula from being a disastrous rout. He afterwards commanded the Second Division of the Third Corps under Sickels at the Battle of Gettysburg, and rescued that corps from disaster by the masterly way in which he changed front under fire. You remember that Sickels, by mistake, got so far out in the Peach Orchard, when the fighting of the second day took place, that there were more men killed on the second day than on the first and third combined. Sickels took up an advanced position. On the left was Little Round Top, on the right the Borough of Gettysburg, behind it Cenetery Ridge, the rear of Meade's Army guarded by Gregg's Cavalry to protect it from assault. The position of Sickles was so far in advance as to be in danger of being flanked and cut off by Longstreet's advance, which would have annihilated the whole Third Corps. Humphreys manoeuvred in such a way that under hot fire and flank attack he drew back, without breaking, the whole line until he brought it into contact with the right and left and closed up the gap. That was his great merit. His mind worked under fire with a precision that is indescribable. His personal gallantry was of the old-fashioned kind. Read the description of his charge on Maryes' Heights at the First Battle of Fredericksburg. Five divisions had attempted to carry that hill. A sixth division was called for. Humphreys led it in person. Shot through the hat, with two horses killed under him, he mounted a third, rallied and led his men, losing a larger percentage in forty minutes than the Light Brigade in an hour and a half. That charge, though unsuccessful, was one of the glorious achievements of the war. I have never talked to a soldier on either side, Confederate or Federal, without his telling me that Humphreys was the most remarkable scientific soldier the Army of the Potomac contained. The reason he did not reach the very top was that he had not the slightest trace of the politician about him. He was no newspaper soldier. He drove reporters absolutely out of the camp because they did not belong there, and he would not tolerate being questioned about plans. He could swear like a trooper, gentleman though he was, refined and exquisite in all his tastes; it is said the words blew out in such a way that reporters took their tickets from his camp straight back to Washington. But however choleric, his scientific mastery of himself and of his science was complete. After the Battle of Gettysburg he became chief-of-staff to General Meade. When Hancock was wounded in the Battle of the Wilderness, Humphreys commanded the Second Corps and clung so closely to Lee's retreating flank that Lee could not escape. He was like a wolf-hound clinging to the flank of a deer. His tirelessness enabled Sheridan to ride around Appomattox and head Lee off. Had there been a less tenacious pursuer, Lee might have escaped into the mountains near Lynchburg, Virginia, and guerilla warfare would have ensued. It was Humphreys who held Lee back, and it was through Humphreys' lines that the proposition was first made for Lee's surrender. After the war he became Chief of Engineers of the United States, and for thirteen years served in that capacity. One of his sons reached the rank of colonel and served creditably in the Civil War. He also served as a staff officer on his father's staff. He also served in the Indian Wars, during 1870, and later out in the far west. A second son served with great credit and fidelity in the artillery.

In conclusion, it gives me pleasure to say to this audience, that his only surviving child, a daughter, has been a generous benefactress of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania and has committed to its ownership the precious documents on which I have relied for this story. We have in our possession the originals, through the gift of Miss Humphreys, of the Humphreys' papers, and for that reason I have talked of the Humphreys Family.

* "Christopher Sower projected, and in the year 1743, after three years of toil and labor, completed a magnificent quarto edition of the Bible in the German language, which in completeness and execution has never been excelled in this country. The edition consisted of twelve hundred copies, and was printed from the thirty-fourth edition of the Constine Bible Society of Halle. . . . Besides the text of the 'Halle Bible,' which included the Apocrypha as usually printed, it contained the Third and Fourth Books of Ezra, and Third Book of Maccabees, which were inserted in the Halle edition of 1708, but subsequently omitted. He also inserted the seventh chapter of the Fourth Book of Ezra, which, the author believes, appears in no other edition. . . ."—Simpson's Lives of Eminent Philadelphians now Deceased.

† "The third edition, I have always contended, is the rarest of all the Saur Bibles, as the major portion of the edition, while in sheet, was used by the Continental Army for cartridges. #### WAITE BIBLE.

CONTRIBUTED BY WILLIAM BELL WAIT, ESQ., OF NEW YORK CITY.

Beriah Waite * was married to Asa Baker, November 30, 1779.

Christopher Brown Waite, † son to above, was born June 13th, 1780.

† CHRISTOPHER <sup>7</sup> BROWN WAIT removed to Mayfield, Montgomery, now Broadalbin, Fulton County, New York, about 1800. He married (1) Mary Arnold, (2) Mary Clark, and had issue by both marriages. The wife, "Betsey Bell," attributed to him in John Casson Walt's Family Records of the Descendants of Thomas Wait of Portsmouth, Rhode Island, page 28, belongs to his son of the same name and second marriage, Christopher Brown Walt, who, born at Mayfield, 21 May, 1811, died at Bridgeport, Conn., in June, 1886; married 30 Nov., 1834, Betsey Grinnell Bell, born 30 July, 1800; died 7 Oct., 1880. This latter Christopher Brown Walt was the father of William Bell Wait, born Amsterdam, New York, 25 March, 1839, and not William A[rnold] Walt of Fall River, Mass., as given on the above mentioned page of Mr. Walt's book. The repetition of the same christian name, with perhaps only a varying middle name, has led to some confusion in this line of descendants of Beriah Waite, many of whom dropped the final "e" in their surname.

Mr. Wait has omitted at least one son from the list of children of the elder Christopher Brown Walt: "Stephen Walt, son of Christopher B. Walt formerly of North Kingston, R. I., died at Amsterdam, Montgomery Co., New York."—Providence Phoenix of March 17, 1830.

Beriah Waite, son to above was born March 23d, 1782.

* Colonel Beriah Waite was born at Exeter, Rhode Island, 28 Nov., 1757. His obituary in the Providence Phoenix of 21 April, 1820, states that he had been an officer in the Revolution, a member of the General Assembly in both houses, and Sheriff of the county.

† Benjamin Waite of North Kingston and Exeter, Rhode Island, married

Hannah Arnold, 2d wife of the above departed this life December, 1824.*

MCCALLA BIBLE.

CONTRIBUTED BY MRS. NEWTON WALKER CORSON, OF GERMANTOWN.

William McCalla, his Bible, † 1795.

My mother Died on Sunday, the 15th day of May, 1803.

I, William McCalla Moved from Jenkintown to Philadelphia on the 1 of April, 1807. There was Snow so we moved most of our goods in a Sleigh and the same week it Froze so hard as to bear a waggon and half a Cord of wood.

There was a Snow on the 18 of March, 1843, that was from one to two feet in Different parts of the Country. My brother Alexd McCalla & myself went 11 miles in a Slay where Roads had to be shovelled & the Snow some places was higher than the Horses backs. I am now turned of 70 years old & I never in all my life saw such a deep snow in my life.

William and Jane McCalla were married on Tuesday the 25 day of February, 1794.

Jane Mather was born October the 31st, 1772.

Edwin McCalla was born on Tuesday morning, 15 minutes before one o'clock in the Morning the 21 day of April, 1807.

circa 1756 Sarah, daughter of Berlah Brown, Esq., 1715-1792, of North Kingston, and granddaughter of Alexander Brown of the same place, who, in his will of 13 Aug., 1758, named his "grand daughter Sarah Wait". The article on "THOMAS WAITE OF PORTSMOUTH, R. I., AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS," in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, vol. 73, p. 393, inadvertently makes Sarah Brown the daughter, instead of the granddaughter of Alexander Brown. The error is obvious, as in the list of children of Benjamin and Sarah (Brown) Wait, the daughter, Sarah, is not born until 8 Oct., 1780.

* The Providence Phoenix of 21 December, 1825, gives her death as at North Kingston in her sixty-third year.

O Thou! or friend, or stranger, who shall tread
These solemn mansions of the silent dead;
Think, when this record to enquiring eyes,
No more shall tell the spot where RITNER lies:
When this frail marble, faithless to its trust,
Mould'ring itself, resigns its mouldering dust
When time shall fail, and nature's self decay,
And earth, and sun, and skies dissolve away:
The soul this consummation shall survive,
Defy the wreck, and but begin to live.
Oh, pause! reflect, repent, believe, amend!
Life has no length—Eternity no end."

NOTES, QUERIES AND CORRECTIONS.

REED-BROOKS. REED RECORD from the DOWDNEY BIBLE, formerly in possession of LEWIS H. DOWDNEY, Esq., of Bridgeton, New Jersey:

Lewis Reed,* born March 1, 1753, died November 28, 1792.

Rachel Brooks† Reed, was born June 1, 1758, died August 18, 1824.

Children:

Lemuel Reed, born January 20, 1776.

Lewis Reed, 2d child of — and Rachel Reed was born February 14, A. D., 1778.

Samuel Reed, 3d child was born May 12, 1783.

David Reed, 4th child of Lewis and Rachel Reed, born March 15, A. D., 1785. Died in Millville, New Jersey, May 29, 1830; married July 15, 1805, Lodewia Ayers, born July 25, 1788; died June 26, 1854. †

Cynthia Reed, 5th child of Lewis and Rachel Reed, born March 12, A. D. 1787. Married Henry Dowdney.

Enoch and Enos, 6th child, [twins] of Lewis and Rachel Reed, born September 29, A. D. 1792.

A. R. J.

* LEWIS REED was the grandfather of Thomas Sydenham Reed, M.D., of Philadelphia. The latter died September 11, 1889, and not September 11, 1859, as stated in SAMUEL CARPENTER and HIS DESCENDANTS, p. 106.

† RACHEL BROOKS REED administered on her husband's estate December 11, 1792. According to Charles B. Sheppard, Esq., president of the Cumberland County, New Jersey, Historical Society, and long interested in the compilation of the Brooks, Sheppard and allied families, she was a daughter of SETH BROOKS, 3d., by his wife, DOROTHY SHEPHERD. The latter was one of the daughters of ENOCH SHEPHERD, JR. (Enoch, 2 John, 1 Esq.), of Hopewell Township, Cumberland County, by his wife RACHEL WATSON, who, in his will of June 29, 1760, named, "daughter Dorothy Brooks." Rachel (Brooks) Reed was also a descendant, in the fifth generation, of the Rev. Timothy Brooks (Seth, 3 Seth, 2 Rev. Timothy 1), of Swanzy, Massachusetts, who, with a company of Welsh Baptists, settled in Hopewell Township, at the present Bowentown, in 1689, and became the pastor of its first Baptist Church. He died in 1716 in his 55th year; leaving by his wife, Hannah Bowen, sons, Seth, Zebulon, Timothy, and daughters Hannah, Patience, Keziah and Zerviah. Morgan Edwards, in his HISTORY OF THE BAPTISTS OF NEW JERSEY, (1792) says: "These [sons and daughters] married into the families of Cresce, Smith, Ayars, Johnsons and Bishops. His grandson Seth is yet (1792) alive, who tells me that he has eighty of his own offspring to follow him to the grave." This SETH BROOKS, in his will of May 17, 1789, proved November 19, 1792, named son Seth and his sons Thomas and Enoch; sons John and David; grandsons Ira, James and Samuel, the latter two not twenty-one; granddaughters Hannah and Mary Brooks; daughters Temperance Sheppard, Elizabeth Hall, Eleanor Falker and wife Eleanor.

SETH BROOKS, 3d., by his wife DOROTHY SHEPHERD, had: Rachel, above; Phoebe, who married Isaac Jenkins; Enoch, Thomas, James and Susan, which sons are named by their grandfather, Seth Brooks, second of the name, in his will just quoted.

LEWIS—DILL. A letter of MRS. J. L. TEST of Reynoldsville, Penna., to MRS. JANE LEWIS BROWN of Ridgway, Elk County, Penna., under date of November 16, 1908, confirms the statements in the LEWIS-DILL query of the last number, and gives some additional information. It states that Lewis Lewis died in Lewistown, leaving considerable property in the neighborhood of Milton and Newbury, and, in Lycoming County. The letter further states that, Sarah, the only daughter of Lewis Lewis and Jane Dill, married Enoch Passmore, and that the said Enoch and Sarah (Lewis) Passmore were the grand-parents of the writer, who was then, 1908, aged seventy-three years. Mrs. Test added that EDWARD LEWIS, relationship not given, had lived as a tenant in her house.

From Mrs. Mary E. Lewis Kaister of Bartlesville, Oklahoma, comes the information that THOMAS LEWIS, born in 1776, married CYNTHIA ELLIS and lived in Elk County, where his descendants were also located until recently. His son, Ellis Lewis, born in 1808, married Anna Mickles, and was the father of JANE LEWIS BROWN, who, in Nov., 1921, was living with her daughter, Mrs. Kaister, in Bartlesville. Information as to the family and parentage of LEWIS LEWIS, or, to that of his wife, JANE DILL, will be greatly appreciated. The latter had a sister, Mrs. BRACKEN of Pittsburgh.

DE LONG. A Correction. In "The Pennsylvania-German," volume IV, October, 1903, page 382, in an "addendum" to an article on "The De Long Family in America," it is claimed "that the De Longs come from the French nobility according to de Maigney's 'Science of Heraldry,' published in Paris in 1856." This claim is credited to the Rev. Calvin M. De Long, East Greenville, Pa. Since the writer as well as he who is credited with this claim are descendants, though in different lines, of the same Pyeter Delangh (or as he himself was wont to write his name: pyeter delangh), he came from the Hudson Valley to what is now Berks county in Pennsylvania, some time, it would seem, between 1739 and June 1738, this claim naturally had more than ordinary interest for him.

Upon making inquiry where this work by de Maigney had been consulted, the writer was referred first to the British Museum and then to some libraries in this country. Inquiries were addressed to the British Museum and also to the leading libraries in Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington, New York, and Boston. The usual reply from these libraries was that they had no book under this title by this author and further that they had no knowledge of the existence of such a book. The F. C. Stechert Company however suggested that, possibly, the following book was intended: "Nouveau Traité Historique et Archéologique de la vraie et parfaite Science des Armoiries, par M. le Marquis de Magny, Paris, 1856."

A copy of this work was procured with some difficulty, for it is very scarce, and was examined with reference to this claim that the De Longs are descendants of the French nobility. The writer has however failed to find any mention of the name "De Long" in this rather large work. The only name in it that comes closest to this name, in its present form or spelling, is found in the following statement on page 41: "LONG, ANGLETERRE, comté de Wilts," which of course is not "de Long," but "LONG, ENGLAND, county of Wilts." There is evidence for believing that this particular claim that the De Longs are descendants of the French nobility rests upon this statement in this work by de Magny, of which the author's name is erroneously given as de Maigney, as elsewhere (see below) it is given, likewise erroneously, as de Maigney.

In the first place, there is apparently no author by the name of de Maigney who wrote a book under the title "Science of Heraldry" that was published in Paris in 1856. In the second place, it is to be observed that the book by de Magny was published in Paris, and that too in 1856, and that its title in abbreviated form and in English might be given as "Science of Heraldry," and all the more readily so, since on the title page the words, "Science des Armoiries," of the rather long title are printed in bolder and larger type, and also since these words constitute the binder's title. All this would seem to indicate that de Magny's Science des Armoiries is cited under an incorrect form of the author's name and under an English title. The author's real name de Magny became de Maigney, and the abbreviated French title, Science des Armoiries, became Science of Heraldry.

As to the particular statement in the work, the one quoted above, this seems to have been quite misunderstood. The only question is by whom it was misunderstood. Was it misunderstood by the above mentioned Calvin M. De Long (who now writes his name de Long, having adopted the latter form apparently about a decade and a half ago, though quite recently he told the writer by letter that he again writes his name De Long) or, by some one else who was then followed by the former? There is evidence for believing that the latter is the case.

In 1901 there was published in Carlisle, Pa., a book by the Rev. A. Stapleton, entitled "Memorials of the Huguenots in America." On page 158 is printed a list of names under the title, "List of the French Nobility," another on page 159, under the title, "The French Nobility, con." This list is claimed to contain names of "families of noble rank described in de Maigney's (sic) Science of Heraldry." In a foot note additional information is given concerning this author and his work. Thus it is said that the work was published in Paris, in 1856. Here however the book is cited not under an English but under a French title, as follows, "Science des Armoiries." In this list of families that are alleged to be of the French nobility Stapleton places the name "de Long" or rather "Long, de," which is however not found in the original from which the compilation was confessedly made. When now it is observed: (a) that Stapleton's work was published prior to the article in the Pennsylvania-German, the one in 1901, the other in 1903; (b) that all the data in the claim "that the De Longs come from the French nobility according to de Maigney's 'Science of Heraldry,' published in Paris in 1856" are found in Stapleton; and (c) further that the name of the author in the Pennsylvania-German is given as de Maigney while in Stapleton it is given as de Maigney, one can hardly escape the conclusion that the data in the Pennsylvania-German with reference to this particular point were derived from Stapleton and not from the original work by de Magny, whether in the British Museum or elsewhere.

If this is so, and there can hardly be any doubt about its correctness, then the particular statement in de Maguy's work was misunderstood by Stapleton and the one quoted in the Pennsylvania-German simply "patschte hintendrein."

This particular claim "that the De Longs come from the French nobility according to de Maiguy's 'Science of Heraldry,' published in Paris in 1856" is therefore ill-founded and has no genealogical or historical value.*

Finally, as a caution to others, who may use the book by Stapleton, it should be added that there are other mistakes and misstatements in Stapleton's work in connection with the list on page 159, as also with that on page 158. There are also inaccuracies and misstatements in the body of the work. There are also frequent and doubtful claims with reference to the European origin of certain other American families,—claims that are unsupported by reference to documents or by a statement of the evidence, which shows that so far as this is done the work is unscientific. Without citing further particulars at this time, it requires but to be stated that Stapleton seems to assume with reference to this work by de Maguy that, because it is written in French that, therefore, all the families listed therein are French, which of course is not the case. Indeed, he characterizes this work by de Maguy as a "work on the French nobility." A superficial examination of the work reveals at once that among the families listed are noble families of other European countries.

HAMILTON.—HAMELTON. An abstract of the will of JAMES HAMILTON of Conemangh township, Indiana County, Pennsylvania, dated April 2, 1808; probated August 6, following, is given in PUBLICATIONS, vol. viii, p. 55. This should be James Hamilton. The daughter Elizabeth, therein described "insane," overcame this affliction and married JOHN WEAVER, sheriff of Dearborn County, Indiana, son of GEORGE and MARY WEAVER. John and Elizabeth (Hamilton) Weaver lived in Lawrenceburg, Indiana, had a large family and many descendants well and favorably known in that vicinity. Ann, youngest daughter of James Hamilton, married John Getty and, though not specifically so described in his will, was known to have been a daughter.

CAMPBELL.—DEAL. A GENEALOGICAL ACCOUNT OF THE ANCESTORS IN AMERICA OF JOSEPH ANDREW KELLY CAMPBELL AND ELIZA DEAL, HIS WIFE. By Joseph Andrew Campbell, Philadelphia, 1921, 78 p. 18 illus. Folded chart. Privately printed. 8°.

As a contribution to the genealogical history of the early Scotch Irish and German settlers of Eastern Pennsylvania this work is a valuable addition to any library. As an example of the art of printing and paper making it is a joy to the collector and an ornament to any book shelves.

HISTORY OF THE LYBARGER FAMILY. By Donald Fisher Lybarger, Cleveland, Ohio, 1921, 100 p. 8°. Good index.

This excellent compilation deals with the descendants of John Adam Lybarger, who migrated from the Palatinate to Philadelphia in 1732, taking passage on the ship Johnson, which sailed from Rotterdam and Deal and reached America, September 19, of that year.

In its original form the name would appear to be the French Le Berger, or, La Bergère, meaning the shepherd. Some of the variations in spelling, as found in the public records are: Leberger, Le Berger, Lehberger, Layhariger, Lightenberger, Lieberger, Lebarger, Lyaberger, Lybergr and finally Lybarger.

By his timely work Mr. Lybarger has preserved for the future much of his family history: its migration, its service to the county of its adoption in every war from '76 to '77, and, its part in the peaceful upbuilding of a great Republic.

THE CRADLE OF PENNSYLVANIA. By Thomas Willing Balch, a vice-president of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. Allen, Lane & Scott, Publishers, Philadelphia, 1921, 41 + 4 p. small octavo, cloth.

The author's chief purpose in this interesting historical narrative is "an Appeal to the Patriotic Colonial Societies of Pennsylvania to save The Cradle of our State by urging the founding of the Governor Printz Park," and the naming of the chief artery of travel between Philadelphia and Wilmington, the Governor Printz Highway.

Mr. Balch opens his appeal by calling attention to the settlement, by the English, of Virginia, at Jamestown Island, in 1607, and of Massachusetts, by the coming of the Mayflower to Plymouth, in 1620; of New Amsterdam, by the Hollanders, in 1614, who later made settlements in northern and southern New Jersey, and, in Delaware as early as 1631. This, however, is but the foreword to emphasize the recognition of these facts by the respective states in which the same occurred, and to stress the primary settlement of the territory, now the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by Sweden in 1643, a fact usually overlooked.

Graphically the author outlines the history of the expedition sent out to this country in 1642-3, under the guidance of the great Swedish Chancellor, Oxenstierna, but commanded by Colonel Johan Printz who had served in the Thirty Years' War and was now appointed governor with plenary power to locate the seat of his government wherever his discretion might dictate. Governor Printz entered the Delaware River early in 1643 and located at Fort Christina, near the present City of Wilmington, at which place the earlier Swedish Colony had settled and named Christina, in honor of its girl-queen, daughter of Gustavus Adolphus. Later in 1643 Governor Printz removed the capital of New Sweden from Fort Christina to Great Tinicum Island, and here, on the spot now occupied by the Corinthian Yacht Club, some few miles from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania had "the beginning of her sovereignty and Christianity." Too much cannot be said in support of Mr. Balch's effort to make Governor Printz and his settlement known to all the world.

A TOUR IN HUGUENOT COUNTRIES. An address by Henry W. Shoemaker delivered at a Meeting of the Executive Committee of the Huguenot Society of Pennsylvania, at Reading, July 8, 1920. Published by the Times Tribune Company, Altoona, Penna., 13 p. 8°.

MEMOIRS OF JAMES ORD OF ORD RANCHO, CALIFORNIA. Edited by Henry W. Shoemaker, author of "The Last of the War Governors," and, lately president of The Huguenot Society of Pennsylvania. Published by the Times Tribune Company, Altoona, Penna., 1920, 28 p. per. 8°.

The first of these brochures gives a delightful resumé of a trip to Huguenot centres and Huguenot leaders of thought—to North French Africa, the capital city of which, Algiers, is a noted stronghold of Huguenot culture and religious life; over the Mediterranean to Marseilles, the famous centre of French Protestantism; through Provence, crossing the Rhone at the ancient city of Arles, thence to Nîmes and on into the Cevennes, made familiar by Stevenson's pen-picture, "TRAVELS WITH A DONKEY," which so vividly portrays the sufferings of the Huguenots of this region. At Paris there is the visit to Monsieur Puaux, President of the Huguenot Society of France, and the appeal of his vision of a closer spiritual union between the Huguenot Societies of America and France of which the author writes most graphically. No intellectual descendant of Calvin and the other great leaders of the Reformation can fail to be thrilled by Mr. Shoemaker's narrative including his comparisons between certain well known scenery of Eastern Pennsylvania and the storied Huguenot country of his tour.

The second brochure has to do with JAMES ORD. The romantic legend attached to him has always possessed a peculiar charm for historians and literateurs. Many have upheld his honest belief that he was the son of King George IV of England, and Mrs. Maria Fitzherbert, while others, including the gifted Irish author, Shane Leslie, have made light of his pretensions. Fortunately for his descendants and friends he left several autobiographical fragments, some in his own handwriting which tell his story better than others could tell it for him. These fragments presented in book form, by Mr. Shoemaker, will clear the way for the historian of the future and make a foundation upon which to build investigation.

OUTSTANDING DAYS. By Cheeseman A. Herrick, Ph.D., LL.D., President of Girard College. The Union Press, Philadelphia, 1920, 282 p. small 8". Cloth.

Dr. Herrick has done much for the student-body of the business world as the editor of the Macmillan's Commercial Series, and as the author of THE MEANING AND PRACTICE OF COMMERCIAL EDUCATION, and the HISTORY OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY (Macmillan, 1917, 1920). The former explains the purpose and describes the actual working of Commercial Schools. The latter gives a review of world history from the commercial and industrial point of view with enough of general history to furnish a background. Prepared as a text-book, it is for the general reader an unusually fascinating and illuminating treatise.

During his many years of academic life Dr. Herrick has made opportunity for occasional addresses and many magazine articles. Some from each of these groups have been presented in book-form under the title, RECLAIMING A COMMONWEALTH AND OTHER ESSAYS, Philadelphia, 1911, which has become widely known.

In his latest work, OUTSTANDING DAYS, the author has made an inspirational contribution to the every-day world, and it would be well if each desk had somewhere at easy reach a copy thereof. The "Contents" well covers this particular field of endeavor: Place of Special Days, New Year's Day, Lincoln's Birthday, Washington's Birthday, Good Friday, Easter Sunday, Mother's Day, Memorial Day, Children's Day, Flag Day, Commencement Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Beginning School, Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day. Many have observed all of these days. All have observed some of them. It would be better if all could, at the appointed time, observe all in succession. Hearts grow warmer and the brain clearer by such attention to the commonweal.

In passing, it may be said that Flag Day as a national observance had its beginning not "with the action of the governor of New York," in 1897, but, in Philadelphia, in 1893, by the action of a body of patriotic women—the Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Dames of America. Which action was promptly endorsed by the Pennsylvania Society of Sons of the Revolution, who, in 1893, addressed the President of the United States, the governors of the States and territories, the press associations, and other organizations and individuals on the subject of the Flag being displayed from every home in the land on every June 14. Thus, was the national observance of Flag Day begun in Philadelphia, June 14, 1893.

Memoir

MRS. JAMES MIFFLIN.

LILY STURGIS MIFFLIN, widow of James Mifflin, Esq. of Philadelphia, and daughter of Edward Wight by his wife, Caroline Frances Stihason, was born in New York City, October 2, 1850, and died at Philadelphia, May 27, 1920. The representative of long lines of distinguished New England ancestry, Mrs. Mifflin, from the time of her marriage to James Mifflin, was closely identified with the social and intellectual activities of Philadelphia. Music, art and historical matters occupied a large place in her life. The needs of her fellow-men and women held an appeal for her and many were her deeds of unostentatious kindness. Often, indeed, was her hand stretched out to help and to strengthen those temporarily embarrassed by the tides of time.

She took an intelligent interest in the evolution of the patriotic hereditary societies, was instrumental in the formation of the Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Dames of America, and ably filled the position of its first Corresponding Secretary. Mrs. Mifflin became deeply interested in the Swedish settlements on the Delaware, and, it was due to her efforts that the Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Dames selected, in 1895, February fifteenth as the day for its annual commemoration—that being the day in 1643, when Governor Printz sailed up the Delaware and established the first seat of government, within the present State of Pennsylvania, on Tinicum Island. Her address, before the Society at this occasion, on John Printz, Governor of New Sweden, subsequently appeared in The American Historical Register, a monthly gazette of the Patriotic Hereditary Societies of the United States, published in Philadelphia, 1894-7, of which she was an associate editor and contributor.

A close student of art in its manysideness, Mrs. Mifflin served for years in the Associate Committee of Women to the Board of Trustees of the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art. To this work she brought an enthusiasm that knew no bounds and rarely missed a committee meeting. She had travelled extensively. In earlier days she was accustomed to spend many summers abroad—notably in Italy—and there she developed a taste for the curious and unusual objects of art, some of which she afterwards presented to the Pennsylvania Museum. The Tyrolese peasant's Cottage, now exhibited in the Children's Museum at Memorial Hall, was one of her gifts.

Mrs. Mifflin was the first woman to serve on the Board of Directors of The Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania, was the first Chairman of its Associate Committee of Women, and keenly alive to the welfare of the Society. One of the last acts of her life was a bequest to it of two thousand dollars. With the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, she had been identified for years and was ever eager to further its advancement, making it, too, a beneficiary under her will. During the World War none were more active than she in support of the Receptions, given under its auspices to the Officers, Soldiers, Sailors and Marines. For and at these functions she was unsparing of herself, her time, and her financial aid. Here, her real personality showed itself and greatly endeared her to the throng of youth which overflowed the Society's spacious halls.

Fond of social life she upheld its best traditions and was esteemed by old and young alike. Well and widely read, her observation on the questions of the day compelled attention and made her a desirable addition to any gathering. At the opera she was a familiar figure—in the stock holder's seats at the Academy of Music and elsewhere. In membership with many organizations civil, social and patriotic, Mrs. Mifflin brought to them all the resources of a trained and positive mind, ripe judgment, clearness of thought, cleverness of speech, toleration of the faults and foibles of others, a sense of humor equal to most emergencies and a just and generous giving. Withal, she was a loyal friend, and a communicant of the Episcopal Church in whose faith and practice she died. The recollection of a life so wrapped up in activities will fill the minds of the many who knew her well with an inspiration and an example. Hers was

“The reason firm, the temperate will,
Endurance, foresight, strength and skill.”

THIRTIETH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

READ AT THE ANNUAL MEETING, MARCH 6, 1922.

To the Members of The Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania:

The Board of Directors beg to submit the following report, which covers the period from March 1, 1921, to December 31, 1921.

At the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Society held March 7, 1921, the following named officers and directors were elected:

President, J. Granville Leach.

Vice-Presidents, Charles P. Keith, Edward S. Sayres, John F. Lewis.

Recording Secretary, Ernest Spofford.

Corresponding Secretary, Edward Robins.

Treasurer, C. Howard Colket.

Historian, Ogden D. Wilkinson.

Directors, to serve three years, Louis B. Moffett, Frank H. Stewart, Henry R. Hatfield;

to serve for two years, Wilbur P. Klapp, M. D.

After the election, Mr. Edward Biddle gave an exceedingly interesting and informing address on "Some Unedited Revolutionary Letters, with Comments." The usual supper for the members and guests followed.

Two resolutions unanimously adopted by this meeting should be noted:

"Resolved that The Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania in Annual Meeting assembled desires to express great regret at the illness and absence of its President, Colonel Josiah Granville Leach, the strong hope of his early recovery and the highest appreciation of his services to the Society since its first gathering together; and to add to this, particular thanks for the contribution made by him of a Third Liberty Loan Bond of One Thousand Dollars to the Treasury of the Society."

"Resolved that the Society express its deep regret at the absence of its faithful and efficient Treasurer, Mr. C. Howard Colket, and its hope that he will soon regain his accustomed health and vigor."

At a regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors held May 16, 1921, announcement was made of the receipt of the Anne Hannum Crosson legacy of $1,000.

The death of Mrs. James Mifflin on May 27, 1921, brought with it keen regret and profound sorrow. A life member of the Society, a Director, and Chairman of The Associate Committee of Women, Mrs. Mifflin's deep concern in the work and welfare of the Society was varied and pronounced, and the seventh clause of her will provides for a legacy of $2,000. In other clauses of her will provision is made for legacies to The Historical Society of Pennsylvania. In justice to her memory attention should be invited to the fact that, during the period of the Historical Society's entertainment of soldiers, sailors and marines, Mrs. Midlin was lavish in the expenditure of her time and substance. She endeared herself to every worker in that field; and she won for herself the undying gratitude of many a lonely and needy boy in the service.

During the year Article II, Section III of the By-Laws was amended and adopted to read:

"The annual dues shall be five dollars, payable in advance on the first day of January in each year, Provided that, a person elected between July first and January first shall pay two dollars and fifty cents for the balance of the fiscal year, and further provided that, a person elected between November first and January first shall not be required to pay annual dues for the fiscal year."

Owing to unrest in the printing world and to other causes, the Publication of the Society for 1921 was not delivered to the membership until February, 1922. The unusually large balance in the Treasurer's report is due, therefore, to the fact that no publication bill was presented in 1921. This is the first year since 1906 that such a delay has occurred in this branch of the work.

From March 1, 1921, to December 31, 1921, 51 new members have been enrolled. This progress is in large measure due to the activity of The Associate Committee of Women. In connection with this increase in the membership, the Board desires to express its obligation to many individual members of the Society as well as to the Associate Committee.

The membership, the largest in the history of the Society, is as follows:

Number of members, March 1, 1921 .....	406
Deaths .....	8
Resignations .....	5
	393
Elected and qualified .....	51
	<hr/>
Number of members January 1, 1922 .....	444

The membership classified is as follows:

Honorary .....	5
Life .....	128
Annual .....	295
Publication Fund .....	16
	444

The following were transferred from annual to life membership:

Mrs. Hamilton Bell	John C. Heckman
Mrs. Walter J. Freeman	W. W. Reed, M. D.
Joseph R. Grundy	Winthrop Sargent
Mrs. Alvin A. Parker	Miss Nina Lea

During the period from March 1, 1921, to December 31, 1921, the additions to membership were:

Life Members.

Harry H. Battles	Mrs. J. Horace Evrieu
Mrs. Frank L. Black	Mrs. Louis Prevost Evans
Henry G. Borneman	Mrs. Harrold E. Gillingham
George Fritz Chandler	Frank Worthington Melvin
Mrs. Thistram C. Colket, 2d	Mrs. Edward W. Parker
Mrs. J. Madison Taylor

Annual Contributing Members.

George H. Adams	Miss Ida Fricke
Mrs. J. Howe Adams	Clarence Foster Hand
Miss Helen Audenried	Mrs. Clarence Foster Hand
Frank H. Bachman	Miss Letitia A. Humphreys
Mrs. William Barnett, Jr.	Henry A. James
Martin V. Bergen	William H. Johnson
Mrs. Benjamin Harris Brewster, Jr.	Samuel C. Kerr
Mrs. Robert Pitfield Brown	Gildon E. Kille
Joseph A. Campbell	Edward Law
Mrs. George Fritz Chandler	Arthur H. Lea
Miss Anna K. Coates	Craig N. Liggett
Mrs. Whitwell W. Coxe	Thomas Lynch Montgomery, Litt.D.
John Rulon Dowager	Adolphus Roggenburger
Mrs. Frederick Dracass	Henry W. Scarborough
Edwin Squire Dankerley	Charles F. Schaeffer
Houston Dunn	Mrs. J. D. L. Schoonover
Mrs. Houston Dunn	Mrs. Arthur W. Sewall
W. B. Eilenberger	St. George L. Sioussat
Mrs. Frederick Enders	Miss M. Ina Warren
Herman W. Fernberger	Miss Eleanor Elizabeth Wright

The following named members were elected in January and February, 1922:

Mrs. Harry C. Campion	Mrs. Julien Ortiz
George J. DeArmond	G. Byron Summers
J. Keyser DeArmond	Miss Juliana Wood
William P. Baneroff	Henry B. Coles
Hubert Somers	Mrs. William F. Thacher
Daniel B. Wentz	Mrs. John C. Groome
Frederick C. Fearug	Henry S. Williams
Henry S. Drinker, Jr.	Miss Emma Cadbury
Miss Alice Browning	Miss Elizabeth W. Lowry
Vivian Frank Gable	Mrs. Samuel S. Thompson
Evan Randolph	Mrs. Thomas F. Branson
Mrs. Evan Randolph	Miss Caroline N. Rhoads
Miss Frances H. Irwin	John C. Lowry
Alfred Cope Garrett	George Bailey, Jr.
Mrs. Jones Wister	Franklin Smedley
Mrs. Felix E. Schelling	James G. Biddle
Mrs. Howard Gardiner	Miss Mary Hart Darragh

Miss Jean E. Graffen

With profound regret the Board reports the death of the following named members:

William W. Frazier died Aug. 24, 1921.

George H. Hill died Aug. 28, 1921.

John Woolf Jordan, LL.D. (Honorary member), died June 11, 1921.

Samuel W. Levis died Mar. 7, 1921.

Mrs. Daniel S. Merritt died June 22, 1921.

Mrs. James Nifflin (life member), died May 27, 1921.

S. Davis Page died Oct. 10, 1921.

Condy B. Shoemaker died Feb. 24, 1921.

The collections of the Society number 406 volumes, of which the following were added from March 1, 1921 to December 31, 1921:

De Witt and other Families.

Family Charts by W. Nelson Mayhew, comprising the following families: Mayhew, Hubley, Shippen, Burd, Haliburton, Bowers, Curtis, Nagle, Rodney, Hulings, Pollock, Annan, Plundey, Riley, Clay, Du Bois, Brinckley, McVaugh.

THE SECOND ANNUAL REPORT OF THE ASSOCIATE COMMITTEE OF WOMEN.

READ AT THE ANNUAL MEETING, MARCH 6TH, 1922.

To the Board of Directors of the Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania:

This, the second year of your Associate Committee's existence has been one of sowing rather than reaping, though the harvest already garnered has not been insignificant. This year the Committee has assiduously planted the seeds of genealogical interest not only along the sunny high-ways of ceaseless contact, but also in shady unfamiliar by-ways, where so often flourish beautiful shrubs and ever-bearing fruit trees, and it knows that the Society it serves will, some day if not already, be broader and bigger because of this seed-time.

Then, too, the Committee has become more familiar with the ideals and work of the Society. It has passed the period of thinking The Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania a place, as a dear lady once expressed it, "in which to keep one's genealogical tree"! It has come to know that, "no better organization yet exists, for the preservation of Pennsylvania Antiquities. For, is not an ancient record-book, now of interest to hundreds and later on in the years to thousands, of as much value to the future, as a mansion house in which lived some one prominent man or family, or a building in which one fact of history, albeit great, had the accident to happen?"

Through the instrumentality of your Committee, at least two such record-books have been permitted to be copied, and thus insured against the ravages of time—those of the Episcopal churches of Gloria Dei, Old Swedes, and St. James'. Permission has also been obtained for the copying of St. Luke and the Epiphany registers.

At each stated Committee meeting, nominations for membership have been acted upon, with an ever-increasing number of life-memberships.

Due to the literary activity of Thomas Willing Balch, Esq. (a Councillor of the Historical Society and member of this Society) that historic justice might be meted out to Johan Printz and his Swedish associates of 1612, for their part in the making of this great Commonwealth, your Committee has prepared a Memorial to his Excellency, William C. Sproul, the present Governor of the State, as well as to the Commissioner of Highways, praying that the highway between Philadelphia and Wilmington be hereafter known as the Governor Printz Highway, in honor of the first chief executive of the territory now known as Pennsylvania. It is the intention of the Committee to still further emphasize, and at no distant date, the importance of the Swedish immigration to Pennsylvania.

The collection of miniatures presented to the Historical Society of Pennsylvania in November, 1921, by Miss Anna J. Magee, a member of this Committee commands particular mention.

The miniatures are individually marked on the reverse side and are as follows:

John Hart, 1711-1779; Signer of the Declaration of Independence from New Jersey.

Major John Polhemus, 1738-1833; Revolutionary officer; member of the New Jersey State Society of the Cincinnati.

Christian Kneass, 1787-1845 (in young manhood) Christian Kneass (middle age); member Second Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, War of 1812; Common Councilman of Philadelphia, 1831.

Caroline Axford, 1790-1865 (Mrs. Kneass).

James Magee, 1802-1878 (in young manhood) James Magee (past middle age).

Caroline Axford Kneass, 1810-1886 (young womanhood) Mrs. Magee.

Caroline Axford Kneass (as widow of James Magee).

Fannie Sarah Magee, 1832-1916.

Caroline Lydia Magee, 1836-1861.

Eliza Jane Magee, 1837-1906.

James Ronaldson Magee, 1839-1914.

Horace Magee, 1845-1912 (babyhood) Horace Magee (manhood).

Frank Hamilton Magee, 1854-1905 (babyhood) Frank H. Magee (manhood).

Anna Justina Magee (the donor).

By the death of Mrs. Mifflin, May 27, 1921, your Committee sustained a most serious loss. She was the first woman to serve on the Board of Directors of the Society, and, as such was made Chairman of the then newly appointed Associate Committee of Women. Mrs. Mifflin showed her appreciation of her relation to the Society and Committee in one of the last acts of her life—a bequest of two thousand dollars to the Society. The Committee attended her funeral at the Church of St. Luke and the Epiphany and paid its last tribute to her in flowers, which were meant to express what words could not then do. In her own personality Mrs. Mifflin stood for the best in womanhood, was always alert yet conservative, firm though most generous, gracious with much dignity. By her marriage to James Mifflin, Esq., she represented a name of historic interest to Pennsylvania and one prominent in the social life of Philadelphia, generation after generation, from the days of Governor Mifflin. At the first stated meeting after Mrs. Mifflin's passing, it was, "Resolved that the Committee record on its Minutes its appreciation of all that she meant to the Committee, and the privilege each and all its members enjoyed in serving with and under her direction."

The close of 1921 found the personnel of the Committee somewhat changed by new appointments to fill old vacancies, but cemented by the same spirit of enthusiasm and endeavor that had marked the original group.

Respectfully submitted,

NINA LEA, Chairman.

This Society was organized in 1892, "for the promotion of genealogical research, the procuring of transcripts of all official records affording genealogical information, the collection and preservation of registers of births, marriages and deaths kept by religious societies or individuals, and everything pertaining to the history of persons connected with America. The collections shall be the property of The Historical Society of Pennsylvania."

During the thirty-one years of its existence the Society has collected over $57,000, and has on its shelves 507 manuscript volumes. It is impossible with the present number of members to keep pace with the decay and loss accruing from varying causes to the uncopied records; therefore it is greatly desired to increase the membership and thereby the usefulness of the Society. Annual dues are $5.00, and the life-membership fee is $50.00. Library Bonds are accepted for life-membership.

The money derived from life-memberships is invested, the income alone being used. The Publications are sent free to members, and life members are entitled to all available publications. Vol. I, Nos. 2 and 3; Vol. III, No. 1 and Vol. IV, No. 1, are out of print.

GIVEN NAMES FORMERLY IN COMMON USE.

BY CHARLES P. KEITH, LITT. D.

(President of The Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania)

AN ADDRESS DELIVERED BEFORE THE SOCIETY AT THE ANNUAL MEETING
MARCH 5, 1923.

In most ages of the world, as far as history discloses, men had but a single real name, for we cannot call the title Pharaoh, or the throne name of an Egyptian king, an additional name like a modern surname, any more than the word Great or the description "son of" so and so. We count as a single irreducible name even a complete sentence, such as "Nebo, protect the boundaries", or whatever a certain word translated "boundaries" in Nebuchadnezzar's name means.

The Romans, at least for their patricians, had a system of names different from that in use among other people. Take the full names Caius Julius Caesar and Marcus Tullius Cicero. Here in Caius and Marcus we see a first name or prænomen, conferred upon an individual, but scarcely remembered outside except in the case of Tiberius's successor Caius. Then came the nomen, looking like what we call a middle name, but which was the family or tribal name, the name of the gens, as Julius and Tullius; and finally came the cognomen, the hereditary name of the particular branch of the tribe, as Caesar and Cicero. Additional adjectives were applied to or assumed by heroes and Emperors, as Germanicus and Africanus, while Caesar became a part of the name of all who succeeded or were expected to succeed Julius Caesar in power, scarcely any of whom were of his blood. Girls had no given name, but were known according to order of birth as Julia prima, Julia secunda, Julia tertia, and so forth. This was reformed as Christianity spread, with its baptismal rite. As far as I am aware, there was no extension of the system of a gens name and a branch name among Rome's common people or her conquered people, although in individual instances, friends, freedmen, or flatterers adopted names, as the Jewish historian Josephus called himself Flavius Josephus after the Emperor Vespasian and Titus. It was rather usual for a provincial, on receiving Roman citizenship, to take a Roman name, either prænomen or as frequently nomen. Notwithstanding such copying by persons outside, the name system fell with the disappearance of the descendants of the old gentes: and the world, except what obeyed the Emperor at Constantinople, went back to single names, distinguishing those who bore identical ones by saying "son of" so and so. Centuries, varying in number with nations and social classes, elapsed before there was general use of heritable surnames, nobles apparently being the pioneers by appending the name of their residences with the preposition "de" or "von."

Nowadays, everybody whose ancestry dwelt in Western Europe has two names, and really only two. What we call middle names belong to the first or the last name, and until very recently were made part thereof by hyphens in the Peerage books, and, in the last editions, the whole compound last name is connected by hyphens. The last Duke of Buckingham and Chandos,—he died in 1889—had as his first name, evidently pronounced at his baptism three words: Richard-Plantagenet-Campbell, and as his last name five words: Temple-Nögent-Brydges-Chandos-Grenville,—a rather extreme instance of the practice, common in the two last centuries in the upper classes of England, of adding other family names to the patronymic. With most families of our acquaintance, the given names a few generations back have, as a rule, been what had become a single word, although like Dorothy, meaning in Greek the gift of God, it amounted to a noun and qualifying word. From Miss Young's exhaustive History of Christian Names, I learn that Dorothy was once the most common name among English girls, and that its contraction, Dolly, is the origin of the word doll for a child's make-believe baby. The practice of christening with more than one name, or as I say, a compound name made up of several, was adopted in Continental Europe for the purpose either of securing the favor of more than a single saint, or of giving the person baptized some choice as to what he should be usually called, particularly if succeeding to rank and title. Recently Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, chose as King of England to be called Edward. The giving of several names in baptism was not introduced into the British Isles much before the Restoration of Charles II, and was for quite a while infrequent, and may be said now to be largely confined to the families of the King and nobility. In America there were few instances before the last century, and even now it is not universal. Generally it is the transference of somebody's full name, surname and all, to be the given name of the child. The full name so transferred may be that of the mother's father or brother, or that of George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, or other great personage, at one time often Joseph Warren, the Revolutionary hero. A first name, whether simple or compound, is one given, a last name is one inherited or taken to be transmitted by inheritance. The giving is often part of a ceremony, and with the majority of those around us has been given in baptism, hence the term baptismal or Christian name. I will use the term "given name" or "first name" as of wider application. The last name, commonly called "surname," after original assumption or reception by the family, is a matter of custom amounting to law, and is properly changed only by some sort of legal proceeding.

The populace generally suppose that all persons of the same surname are related, unless the surname is Smith, and the neophytes in genealogy are inclined to prove a close relationship between groups of persons of the same surname by showing that the groups have certain first names in common, unless it is the case of Smiths with the first name John. As a matter of fact, in Pennsylvania in colonial days, there were not very many Smiths compared with Owens, Robertses, and other bearers of certain Welsh surnames, and the first question to ask was whether the particular Smith belonged to the large family of the "Burlington Smiths," early settlers of Burlington, New Jersey. A friend of mine, born over one hundred years ago, told me that, in his early days, there were two wealthy Smith families in this city, which were nicknamed respectively the "gold Smiths" and the "silver Smiths," and persons would say of a certain married lady "she was a silver Smith." In a small community, it is fair to start with the hypothesis that all of the same surname are of one family, an hypothesis to be doubted or disproved by circumstances, say too many individuals or too great difference in social status: but when we are concerned with districts of greater extent and population, we recognize that those bearing surnames of business, as Smith, Fisher, Carpenter, Taylor, etc., or surnames denoting a father's first name, as Johnson or Jones, Richardson or Richards, etc., may be descended from unrelated persons; but surnames like Washington, originally de Wessington, derived from a small piece of land, indicate descent from the owner of that piece of land when such territorial name was assumed. Of course, in this country it is important to learn whether any stray George Washington is a white man, and so with the bearer of a distinguished American family name. Confining ourselves to Caucasians, as we may assume the English records do, we may, even when the surname is a common one, make a genealogical argument from the rest of the name: a Warner Jones would probably be descended from a Jones who married a Warner; two Charles Marshall Joneses must be related. Sometimes we may find a clue to the father in a given name, if, for instance, it is that of an historical character likely to be much regarded by a certain kind of man. At one time it would have been a fair guess that a man whose first name was Crispin was son of a shoemaker, St. Crispin being patron saint of that trade. Pennsylvanians have known Crispin as a surname. Nowadays for the father of a De Molay, look for a modern Knight Templar. It is pretty safe to say, if a boy has been named George Herbert, Robert Leighton or merely Leighton, or Reginald Heber, that the father was an Episcopal clergyman. I made a mistake once: the father of a Reginald Heber was not a clergyman but a vestryman. When there is an ordinary first name borne by two or more persons of an ordinary surname, we must doubt any connection between them. The connection would be doubtful even if two or more fathers and mothers had called sons after an historical character, and very doubtful if the historical character was one whom everybody talked about. I have lately learned that there were two Thomas Mifflin Halls in Philadelphia about 1800 whose fathers were both named John Hall, unconnected so far as I know, Thomas Mifflin being an important statesman just before 1800. It would be expected that in the great number of unconnected Smiths, more than one would call a son Benjamin Franklin: it is at the same time conceivable that more than one might take a fancy to call a son Montezuma. It is not likely however, that a surprising idiosyncrasy would be found in two unconnected couples of a surname not widely spread.

Where the given name has not been a surname or a full name used as a given name, in other words where, as in the majority of instances, we find a single word recorded as the given name, it is important to the tracer of relationships to know whether it seemed likely to be used only in one family, or was of ordinary or common use. The question what was an ordinary or common given name depends upon the historical associations or other reasons prevalent at the time and place where the choice of a name was made. Such I propose to indicate in this paper, confining myself chiefly to what concerns the parts of the world respectively in which we and our ancestors during the Christian era live and have lived. I will only give what appears to me clear. You can not expect me to prove any negative statement.

It is noticeable, that, notwithstanding the subjection of North-western Europe to the Senate and Roman People or at least its contact with them, the Roman given names or prænomena, like Gaius, or Caius, have not descended to us, although we have taken some of them from the saints. Even in Italy and what had been Roman colonies, Greek and Hebrew names spread with the propagation of Christianity. The commonest names in the world today are a corruption of the Hebrew Miriam—we say

Mary—the name of the mother of the Lord, and a corruption of the Hebrew Jonah—we say John—that of the Beloved Disciple. In the English Church there has been a rule that if a child is presented for baptism, and the sponsors give a blasphemous or indecent name, the child shall be baptized John, if a boy, or Mary, if a girl. Hence the story of the girl baby, for whom the lisping godmother said “Lucy, thir.” The minister, thinking it was suggested to call a boy “Lucifer,” quickly baptized the girl baby as “John.”

While Christian missionaries, not always of Hebrew blood, were familiarizing the world with Hebrew names, sometimes in Greek form, the unconverted Jews, on the other hand, were often transmitting to their posterity other than Hebrew names, in many cases Greek, and so adding to the prevalence of such. This began before the Christian era. There was an Alexander among the Asmonian kings and a Philip among the Twelve Apostles, just as in our own day there are men of the race whose given names are Germanic derivatives. The Hebrews are the only Semitics among our ancestors, or their fellow-citizens or fellow subjects, unless we count the Phœnicians early in the British Isles as Semitics. In the countries bordering upon the Black Sea and the Mediterranean, various names have been found in the Dark Ages and since which have never been common in Northern or Central Europe, and do not concern us. It is the Celtic, German, and Scandinavian races, from whatever last abode they came, who were the progenitors of what we call the American people. I use the word “German” to include the Franks and the Anglo-Saxons, and “Scandinavian” to include the Normans; so I must use the word “Celtic” to embrace the people of Gaul, the Britons who settled Armorica or Brittany, the Picts and Scots, and the conglomeration of races, said to be Phœnician, Iberian, and of other origin, dwelling in Ireland beyond the English Pale.

We can not say that the names among us of Celtic appearance were actually in use in Britain or France at the time of the Roman conquest. Certainly the names of the chieftains who then fought, do not appear in later generations, until we come to the days of scouring history to see what to call a child. Arthur is the most popular name of British origin. We are not certain that it was borne by a human being before the heroic king of the VIth Century; although Miss Young, in her book, just quoted, says positively that there was anciently a British deity called Arthur, and shows that the element Ard or Arth, meaning high or noble, was widely in use among the Celts. Charlemagne's officer, Roland, called Rotlandus by a contemporary chronicler, has been claimed as a Celt, very justly in my opinion. The wondrous stories attached to him have spread the name through the countries ruled over by Charlemagne, while in Wales it has come down to us as Rowland, a common name at the settlement of Pennsylvania. Not having been used much in Saxon England, it may be said to indicate Welsh blood in some line. In looking over the list of rulers in Church and State in Wales, Brittany, Ireland, and Scotland before the wide spread of saints names, we will notice the numerous non-Celtic names. The explanation is simple. Tradition points to the preaching of the Gospel both within and beyond the Roman districts at the time when the preachers mostly hailed from Syria and Asia Minor, and these and their successors caused the inhabitants to hear of Biblical and Hellenic names. There were among the later missionaries a number who were of Roman blood, and there was a practice of translating names of the clergy into Latin; but the only Roman name which has been perpetuated is Constantine. In Ireland, Bridget had been the most popular Celtic name, borne as it was by a nun, parish worker, or sort of Salvation lassie under St. Patrick; but the most popular name is that taken by the latter at his ordination in France. Patricius is the Latin word from which comes our "patrician." I used to think that he was called Patricius because he "was a gentleman and came of daycent people," but the Apostle of Ireland is said to have had a tutor named Patricius. Affection for St. Patrick spread to the gentry of Scotland. The archangel Michael, whose name is Hebrew, has, I can almost say, every fourth or fifth Irishman called after him, perhaps because he was early revered in Scotland. Another name popular among the Irish is Dennis, a Greek derivative, probably taken from the French St. Denis. Whether as a trace of the Mediævalism which looked up to that martyr, or from the Protestantism which preferred Dionysius the Areopagite, we find in the English parochial records here and there Dennis or Dionyse, a closer approximation to the Greek Dionysios. William Penn had a son Dennis, who died early, named after the boy's great-grandfather Dennis Hollister of Bristol. Brian and Neill, the distinctly Irish names, have been little used in English families. I think that I may fairly say that, the Greek name Alexander, whether introduced by the early monks, or nearer the time when King Malcolm gave it to his son, is the most popular one north of the Tweed, spread through the Lowlands and into the Highlands. Andrew runs it closely. Donald, Duncan, and Kenneth are Celtic, but have not been often found in families wholly of other blood. An early method in Scotland of using the name of saints or angels was to call a person Kill or Giolla, Car, or Mal, i. e. servant, friend, or disciple of such saint or angel, for instance, Kilpatrick, Carmichael, Malcolm, names which except Malcolm appear now only as surnames. The Highland or Celtic Scotch had no part in the settlement of the North of Ireland, the half-way house of the Scotch-Irish to America. The Scotch who came directly hither prior to the American Revolution, were of the gentry or Lowland townspeople. Their blood was mostly Saxon or Norman, and so were their names, if not derived from intercourse with Continental Europe.

Philadelphia and its vicinity even before or independent of the immigration of Roman Catholic Irishmen, was the greatest seat in America of Celtic Christian names. The ancient Britons, retiring before the Saxons, went to Cornwall and the mountains of Cambria, or, as it is now called, Wales. The tin mines of Cornwall are said to have been worked by Phoenicians, and the idea was seriously broached that the Cornish family of Balhachet got its name from the god Baal. Cornwall may be dismissed as the source of any well-known Christian names. The Welsh did not adopt surnames as early as the important persons in other nations, but, like the Scotch with the prefix Mac, son, and the Irish with O, descendant, distinguished a man by his father's name prefixed by Ap; whence we get Ap Howell, now the surname Powell, and Ap Rees, now Price. The royal name Tudor was probably a Christian name dating back to the acquaintance of the British with Greek names. It is a corruption of Theodore. Certain Kings of greater or smaller districts of Wales bore the names Cadwalader and Grifflith, which were, in Penn's day, not uncommon as first names, but, under some variation in spelling, are now better known as the surnames of disconnected families. Pennsylvania was at first largely a colony of Welsh, and we meet constantly with Welsh first names, Owen, Evan, etc., as well as with the corresponding surnames formed with s, equivalent to apostrophe and s. The English Normans had considerable intercourse with the Welsh, the more powerful families often intermarrying, and thus French given names like Hugh and Robert were naturalized in Wales. From Wales or Brittany appears to have come the name Jocelyn and Joyce, the latter very common in England before the settlement of America.

Harold is about the only popular name among us which has been derived from the Scandinavians. In the visitation pedigrees there often occurs Randle or some variation of it such as Randolph or Ralph. Randall was not uncommon in Penn's day. The function of the Normans in giving us names was chiefly the taking across the English Channel of those in vogue in France, and such, when not saints' names, were of German origin.

The heathen Germans in their names do not seem to have referred to their gods, but rather to have used figures of speech or epithets denoting qualities shown or hoped for. These have been carried by the Anglo-Saxons and the Franks to Western Europe, and, except for religious names, are the commonest among us. The Saxons in England made great use of the word Ead or Ed, meaning rich, calling persons Edward, rich guard, Edwin, rich friend, Edmund, rich protection, Edgar, rich spear, and so forth. The Franks in Gaul similarly made Hlod or Hlud, fame, a syllable, as we see in the name of the first Christian King, Chlodwig or Clovis, since perpetuated as Louis. The other combinations of Chlo as Clothaire, Clotilde, etc., have not been much used in England. Among the common names of Western Europe in varied spelling in the different languages, are the German words or phrases; Karl, a man or manly, Wilhelm, helmet of defence, Heinrich, ruler of the home, and Richard, stern king. Charles, William, Henry, and Richard have held their own among English-speaking people to the present day. Miss Young notices the frequent occurrence of Avis or Avice in the early registers, deriving it from the German Hedwig, but it certainly was rare by the time of John French of Pennsylvania, about 1710, who had a wife Avis.

The first converts to Christianity in many cases took at baptism a name expressing a Christian virtue, event, or status, or the name of the teacher through whom the faith was embraced, and there were several instances before the Vth Century of persons called Quod vult Deus, anticipating the pious ejaculations among the English Puritans about twelve hundred years later. Yet Christian parents in the early centuries, when bringing their children to baptism, did not unanimously discard the names familiar to their ancestors, even if suggestive of the pagan gods. Along with a certain persistence in such, there came in time the use of saints' names, either as examples for the child, or as invoking a guardianship for it. The saints most naturally selected were the New Testament worthies, the early martyrs or preachers, the patron saints of the respective nations, and the saint after whom the parish church was called. As to those without association with the locality, legends clustered around some, to the oblivion of others of equal merit, and to the obscuring of their own true history. Cæcilia, a very early martyr, a Roman lady of patrician blood, made the name Cicely a common one in the English heralds' visitation books. The masculine form is said to be the origin of Kilian, a name in the Van Rensselaer family of New York. Petronella, by which among females St. Peter was honored, appears in baronial pedigrees. Lawrence, a martyr of the IIIrd Century, known chiefly from his gridiron, was also very popular "when knighthood was in flower." Georgios, whom we call George, who appears, Gibbon notwithstanding, to have been an early Christian martyr, a soldier by occupation, has been the patron saint of England since the Crusades. Miss Young declares his name, which early spread to Scotland, to be more used than any other in England, which may have been true in her own day, after a century and a half of toadyism to the Hanoverian kings; but it does not predominate in America, where there have been so many followers of George Fox and so many reverers of George Washington. The Apostle Andrew was the patron saint of Scotland. Nicolas, Bishop of Myra in the IVth Century, who is the original of Santa Claus, has had numerous persons named after him in Holland, and on the Hudson. Miss Young does not mention the name Nicasius, which I suppose was a variation of Nicolas. Admiral Penn's wife was the widow of Nicasius van der Schuren. I can think of only one Nicolas among the early emigrants to Pennsylvania, Nicholas Newlin from Ireland. The name Nicholas spelt in England with an h, which spoils the Greek appearance, was transmitted from Nicholas Scull, the surveyor of about 1750, to Nicholas Biddle, his descendant, the celebrated financier. Outside of that family, I should call it a rare name among us. Very different naturally is David, because of our Welsh element; David, Bishop of Menevia, was patron saint of Wales. Not all the saints in the calendar nor even the greatest in the history of Christendom have had many Englishmen called after them. John Chrysostom or Chrysostom by itself is an uncommon first name. Thomas à Becket, rather than Thomas the Apostle, made Thomas a popular Christian name, lasting as such through the centuries since the subjection of the ecclesiastical to the civil power, the ultimate defeat of his cause. Among the great missionaries, Augustine of Canterbury, was not forgotten at the time of the settlement of Virginia. We find that since the removal of the supposed relics of the Wise Men of the East to Cologne Cathedral their traditional names, Caspar, Melchior, and Balthasar, have been frequently bestowed in Germany, Holland, and Sweden. These names, which do not appear in the New Testament, and differ slightly from what are in some early authors, are suitably Oriental: Caspar, or Jasper, looks like Persian, Melchi is Hebrew, and Balthasar contains the Babylonian Baal, or Bel, and sar is a Babylonian word or syllable. We are familiar with Caspar in families of German origin. In Holland surnames were not generally adopted very early, and the given name of an ancestor was often used, as in Wales. Admiral Penn's father-in-law came from Rotterdam to Ireland calling himself John Jasper, indicating that a near ancestor was christened Jasper. Of the few tracts of 5000 acres purchased from William Penn, one was bought by Major Jasper Farmer of Ireland and his son Jasper Farmer, Junr., and the greater part of Whitemarsh Township, Montgomery County, was allotted to them as location of their land. That Jasper was not forgotten in England, or perhaps Scotland, is further instanced in Jasper Yeates, an early emigrant, ancestor of so many Pennsylvanians. The supposed King Melchior is recalled to Pennsylvanians by the middle name of the German-born Lutheran preacher Heinrich Melchior Mühlenberg. As for Balthasar, there was a Balthazac Bayard and a Baltelasaer—perhaps a misprint—Stuyvesant in New York about 1670. Connected with the city of Cologne is the story of Ursula said to have been martyred with eleven thousand virgins by Attila. Perhaps the statement that she was a Breton maiden on her way to marry a British husband helped to make her name quite common in England before the settlement of America.

With the revival of interest in literature which had nothing to do with holiness, and a lessening of the enthusiasm for the saints, there came, along with an increased use in England of Teutonic derivatives, a fancy for the great names of antiquity. Helen of Troy became probably more often thought of when that name or one of its variations, Ellen, Eleanor, etc., was given to a girl than St. Helena, the Empress, mother of Constantine. Hercules had at least one person named after him in Scotland in the XVIIth Century, and a Scotchman on the Delaware shortly afterwards called a daughter Herculea, while another called a son Æneas; but I do not know that descendants or friends followed either example. A conspicuous instance of the name of great Romans being given in this vicinity, came about in the following way. An Italian woman, whose maiden surname was Cesarini, perhaps derived from a locality, married one Adelmare, and had a son baptized Cæsar, who moved to England, and there served as court physician. He in turn put Cæsar in the name of his sons, one of whom he caused to be baptized Julius Cæsar. The latter became a judge, was knighted, and died in 1630. The judge and his descendants dropped the name Adelmare. One of them, who, according to Sanderson's Lives of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, was Sir Thomas Caesar, a London merchant, had a daughter who married William Rodeney, a settler and official in Penn's dominions. From her descended Caesar Rodney, the Signer, and his nephew Caesar Augustus Rodney.

When, after the Reformation, the Old Testament became familiar to the people, particularly in England, the names of the patriarchs and prophets were given to children, and, although now such are probably given only because borne by some respected relative, the finding of two or more Isaacs, Isaiahs, or Benjamins, among persons of what was a rather common surname two or three centuries ago, is no proof of relationship, but it is different where the Biblical character whose name was taken is an inconspicuous one. I would not expect two disconnected couples to call a son Shadrach or Sheshbazzar. Yet the fancy for Biblical names lingers, and we have heard the joke that an old woman, thinking that she had found one for a dog, called him "Moreover," on the strength of the verse "Moreover the dogs came." The religious of Oliver Cromwell's day were not satisfied with the naming of a person after a holy man; perhaps they thought it a vestige of the invocation of saints, so they used pious exhortations or whole sentences. One Barebon or Barebones, member of Parliament, was called, perhaps at baptism, "Praise God." It has been said, although the Dictionary of National Biography discredits it, that he had a brother called "If-Christ-had-not-died-thou-had'st-been-damned Barebones." His enemies nicknamed him "Damned Barebones." It is certainly true that men were called "Stand fast on High," "Fight the good fight of Faith," etc.

Names unknown in England until after the Restoration have never been common in what were originally the Thirteen Colonies. The settlement of English-speaking America, while its period extends well into the reign of the House of Hanover, was really a transplanting of the ideas, customs, and language in vogue in the previous century. The men who went to Virginia took thither the names common between the Reformation and the spread of Puritanism; those who went to New England and also the Hollanders and others who went to New York brought over the names of Old Testament worthies with a sprinkling of the names popular in France and Germany; and the Welsh and English Quakers, the earliest of whom had been baptized in infancy, did not transmit any peculiar style of names. Unlike certain prelates and monks and nuns, the Friends did not take names in religion, but probably held out against the fashion of "the world's people" for what were heathenish or fanciful. Quaker women have been mostly called Hannah, Susan, Rachel, and Martha, when not Mary or Elizabeth. Among Marylanders, nearly every family has a Henrietta Maria, originally in compliment to King Charles I's wife, whence the Province itself got its name of Maryland. The name Peregrine, of which there were several instances in Pennsylvania, as there had been among the upper classes of England, has survived in Maryland. Among Virginians, it has been very usual to call a girl Virginia, as their region was named after the unmarried status of Queen Elizabeth. Often found in families of the Old Dominion and little outside have been Lucy and Mildred.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, as good Americans think over the first names of the Presidents of the United States, and see how far they illustrate what I have been saying. Do not forget the Stephen before Grover and the Thomas before Woodrow. Eighteen out of the twenty-eight have had one-word given names. In these, or the first word of compound ones, thirteen recall saints to us, viz : five Jameses, two Johns, two Thomases, two Andrews, one Stephen, one George, one Martin recalling the Bishop of Tours, Apostle of France, and one Theodore, there having been a number of Theodores among the saints. There have been three Old Testament names: Zachary, Abraham, and Benjamin. One name from Greek history, Ulysses, and the ordinary worldly name of William, borne by three Presidents, and the surnames used as given names or as the first word of given names, complete the list. I leave you with the thought of Warren, evidently derived from the German medicinal name of Warin, a guardian or protector.

NOTES, QUERIES AND CORRECTIONS.

BURNS. "One comes across sentences in rare books that may be of value to specialists. I picked up the other day the "NARRATIVE/OF THE LOSS OF THE/CATHARINE VENUS AND PIEDMONT/TRANSPORTS....near Weymouth on Wednesday the 18th of November last [1795] by Charlotte Smith". It is a copy that had belonged to Beekford the author of Vathek. In it there are several summary mentions of a Cornet Burns, on pages 19, 28 and, on 29, there is the following: 'Cornet Burns was the son of an American Loyalist* of considerable property, who was deprived of every thing for his adherence to the British Government. He had obtained a cornetcy in the 26th Dragoons in coming to serve with which in the West Indies, he was thus lost in his 24th year.'

On page 30 it says that "Cornet Burns had intended embarking in the Fowler Transport and had actually sent his horse on board when finding the Catharine more commodious he gave the latter the preference. The Fowler put back in safety to Spithead'. On page 36 it speaks of the finding of the body and the burial of Cornet Burns. On page 39 there is a copy of the inscription on the tomb of several officers including Cornet William Stukeley Burns of the 26th Light Dragoons.

I am sending this because I think it ought to go into the columns of some genealogical periodical, since it proves beyond doubt the date of a member of a family which may have been of importance."—William Beer, Librarian, Howard Memorial Library, New Orleans, La.

MUTTON AND THE FIRE COMPANIES: [Philadelphia]

At a meeting of the HIBERNIA FIRE COMPANY of this City, on the 4th instant, from Motives of Frugality, and in order to reduce the present high Price of Mutton, and encourage the Breweries of Pennsylvania, it was agreed not to purchase any Lamb this season, or drink any foreign Beer.

In order to encourage and increase the Growth of Sheep in this Province, it was agreed, at a Meeting of the FELLOWSHIP FIRE COMPANY, on the 4th instant, that none of their Members do buy or expend any Lamb Meat in their Families during the ensuing season.—Pennsylvania Gazette, March 7, 1765.

At a meeting of the CROWN AND BEAVER FIRE COMPANY, on the eleventh instant, it was agreed, for the better promoting of the increase of Sheep, in this Province, not to buy any Lamb this season.—Gazette, March 14, 1765.

At a meeting of the Union Fire Company in Trenton on the sixth instant, it was unanimously agreed by the members to expend no Lamb in their families this season.—Gazette, May 16, 1765.

At a Meeting of the HEART and HAND FIRE COMPANY on Thursday it was agreed not to purchase any Lamb this Season, in order to reduce the exorbitant price of Mutton, and to promote the Growth of Sheep in this Province.—Gazette, April 11, 1765.

A number of the principal Gentlemen in BOSTON have entered into an agreement, for promoting the Increase of Sheep in this Province, not to purchase LAMB the ensuing Season.—Message from Boston, Mass., April 4, 1765, printed in Pennsylvania Gazette of April 18, 1765.

SNOWDEN-L'ESTRANGE.—Snowden, possibly of Philadelphia, married about 1798-1799, Harriet Ann L'Estrange, an actress, sometime a member of the Chestnut Street Theatre Company. Young Snowden was sent by his father on a voyage to East Indies and on the return voyage, after he became of age, was lost overboard. The tale of this episode and disaster was told in print long years ago.*

Mrs. Snowden† in November, 1800, again entered upon the Philadelphia stage, where she played with Noble Luke Usher, who became, in April, 1804, her second husband. They soon thereafter were, until 1808, at the Boston Theatre. In Boston and later children‡ were born. Ushers' father established a theatre at Lexington, Kentucky, and young Usher became manager of the circuit with Louisville and Frankfort. Mrs. Usher died in Louisville, in March, 1814, and Mr. Usher died November 20 following, aged thirty-five years, at a road house, Chambersburg, Penna., on his return from New York City where he had been to play in Richard III. The children were reared in Lexington at the home of Usher, Senior. Among the children was one Agnes Pye Usher who early entered upon the stage, but died in Lexington in June, 1834, aged twenty-four years.

*Durang's "History of the Philadelphia Stage, 1752-1854," which appeared serially in the Philadelphia Journal. His account of the episode states that young Snowden was the son of a Philadelphia merchant and was washed overboard by a high sea as the homeward vessel was entering the Delaware capes, in the year 1800.

†The Records of Old Swedes, Philadelphia, contains the marriage of one Thomas Snowden and Harriet Harold, under date of January 25, 1800.

‡On December 4, 1799, she was billed, in "SECRETS WORTH KNOWING," as "Miss L'Estrange," and on October 6, 1800, as "Mrs. Snowden" in "ALEXANDER THE GREAT, OR THE RIVAL QUEENS" Mrs. Snowden is cast as Parasotis, January 9, 1801, and, in the "Battle of Bunker Hill, or the Death of Warren," as Anna, September, 1801. "Mrs. Snowden" appears as Maryaret in "MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING," January 20, 1804, but is "Mrs. Usher" December 3, 1804.

Mrs. Snowden's parents, Joseph L'Estrange and his wife were connected with the Chestnut Street theatre company, he as prompter and she as "a clever actress" This accounts for the early appearance of their daughter on the stage. Mrs. L'Estrange died at Annapolis, August 26, 1799. Mr. L'Estrange, in Baltimore, in May, 1805.

§On October 12, 1811, a child of Noble L. Usher died, aged about six weeks, and was interred in the Free Quaker Burying Grounds.—Records Philadelphia Board of Health.

Mrs. Harriet Ann Snowden-Usher was an intimate companion in home and stage life of "Betty Arnold", of the Charleston Theatre, who, in 1805, at Boston, became the mother of Edgar Allen Poe, the eminent poet. A silhouette of Mrs. Usher was made ante 1812 and a pen-and-ink sketch of Agnes Pyc Usher, the daughter, about 1830, autographed by J. Warrell, who may have been an artist as well as actor, in Philadelphia, or of Richmond, Virginia. The Christian name of young Snowden and that of his father, together with the date and place of the above marriage is greatly desired; † also the fact of issue, if such there was.—A. T., West Somerville, Massachusetts.

PARDOL. Thomas Pardoe, born in London, England, March 4, 1795, came as an infant with his parents to Pennsylvania where they settled along the North Branch of the Susquehanna River. He filled the office of squire in Northumberland County for many years and died April 21, 1873, and is buried at Lewisburg. He married, March 2, 1824, Sarah Hause, born October 13, 1801; died November 18, 1876. She too is buried in Lewisburg. Information is desired as to his parentage and that of his wife.

GOTSHALL. John H. Gotshall, son of David Gotshall * by his wife Rebecca Heatherington, was born at Lewisburg, August 3, 1831. The ancestry of David Gotshall and Rebecca Heatherington is desired. The latter is said to have been of Scotch descent and the name, it is believed, was later Herrington. J. N. G., 516 Beach Street, Flint, Michigan.

MEEK-HILL. I have recently come into possession of the Bible of my great grandfather, John Meek, who was at one time a resident of Chambersburg, Penna., and in it were the following records:

"This is to certify that John Meek and Euphemia Hill by _____ publication are lawfully joined to each other in the Holy Bonds of Matrimony by me the minister of this town.

CHRISTOPHER FABER, V. D. M.

Chambersburg, December 12, 1787."

The following births are recorded:

	John Meek, Senior	February 14, 1753
	Euphemia Meek	April 16, 1767
Issue—
	Jean (or Jane)	October 25, 1788
	Sarah	March 25, 1792
	Abner	February 12, 1794
	Martha	June 1, 1796
	Hannah	December 20, 1798
	Mary	October 31, 1800
	Hugh	December 6, 1802
	Cynthiaanne	February 10, 1804
	John	April 6, 1807
	Alexander	September 6, 1809

* Michael Gottshall was taxable in White Deer Township, Northumberland County, in 1799.

Can anyone tell me who was the father of John Meek, or Euphemia Hill?
CLIFTON MEEK, NORWALK, CONN.

CRAWFORD-PARKER. Partial reply, Publications, vol. viii, 207: John Crawford married Isabella Parker, November 4, 1773. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John King D.D., Presbyterian minister of the Upper West Conococheague Congregation, whose church edifice was at Church Hill, two and a half miles from Mercersburg, Penna. The name Parker was then not common in that vicinity though there were many Crawfords. It was not uncommon for York County residents, about Gettysburgh, to be married at that church, and, in the marriage records of Dr. Dobbins of Adams County, Conococheague settlers are frequently to be found.—Mrs. Virginia S. Fendrick, Mercersburg, Penna.

Wanted: History, parentage and ancestry of the following:

ALEXANDER—Jane, who married John McGinley of Adams Co., Pa. about 1755-1760.

ATHERTON—Henry, wife Jennet Thelwall of Liverpool, England, who came to Pennsylvania (probably Philadelphia) with their younger children about 1715-1720.

BONINE—James, wife Mary ———, who was living in Derry Twp., Lancaster Co., Pa., about 1750. Had a son, Daniel.

COPELAND—Richard, living in Newberry Twp., York Co., Pa., about 1750. Had among other children, David, who married Rachel Stanton, daughter of John and Sarah, at Warrington Monthly Meeting of Friends, on July 17, 1756.

DIXSON—Henry, of Ireland. Emigrated to New Castle Co., Pa. about 1690. Kept an inn at New Castle. Had among other children William, Dinah and Rose.

FINNEY—Robert, born Dec. 8, 1783. Married in Grayson Co., Va., Apr. 7, 1805 to Hannah Hickman. Was he descended from the Chester Co. Finneys?

GARRETTSON—Lady from Maryland, Christian name unknown, who married James McGinley of Adams Co., Pa. about 1730.

HICKMAN—John, born in Chester Co., Pa., about 1750. Married at Old Swedes Church, Wilmington, on Oct. 28, 1776 to Elizabeth Jefferies.

HILLBOEN—Thomas, who married Elizabeth Hooton on Dec. 12, 1688, at Shrewsbury, N. J. The family were later members of Middletown Monthly Meeting of Friends in Bucks Co., Pa.

MCGINLEY—Margaret, who married Isaac Moore of Adams Co., Pa., June 27, 1786. She was born in that county in May, 1762.

RANDOLPH—Joseph F., born Nov. 19, 1795, probably in New Jersey. Married Sarah Moore of Adams Co., Pa., about 1820, and they later emigrated to Preble Co., Ohio.

STANTON—John and his wife, Sarah ———, who presented a Certificate on July 5, 1755, from Bradford Monthly Meeting to Warrington Monthly Meeting, for themselves and children.

WILLIAMS—William, born at Gwynedd, Pa., in 1719, a son of Richard and Margaret Williams. He married Margaret ——— about 1740, and they soon emigrated to Virginia. Also, his father, Richard, who came from Wales to Pennsylvania sometime after 1704, and was married at Gwynedd Monthly Meeting July 10 (or Oct. 7), 1717, to Margaret Eaton, a widow, maiden name unknown."—Clarence E. Parks, Indianapolis, Indiana.

QUERY: A correspondent states that he has portraits of Mrs. N. Eekstein and Mrs. A. Steiner, painted by Louis Lang in Philadelphia, in 1839. "The portraits are finely executed, in fact are like Stuarts in quality." Information is desired of descendants of these ladies.

FAIRMAN.—On reading the article "The First Provincial Council of Pennsylvania," by the late Colonel Leach, in Publications, vol. vi, March, 1915, I find opportunity to make certain additions and one correction. In naming the children of Thomas Fairman, Ruth is named as the wife of Nicholas Heglis. This error is found in the volume of official copies of Philadelphia County Wills. In making my search I read it Heyler, Heglir or Hegliz. A sight of the original Will showed it to be Stiglitz or Steegletz. He lived in Whitemarsh and he is styled "Fractioner of Physick". In 1734 July 12th. Letters were granted on his Estate to Thomas Steegletz "eldest son and heir". Nothing further known of this family.

Phila. Deed Book, E.1 Vol. 5, p. 155. A Power of Attorney from Robert Fairman of the Parish of St. Sauveur, Southwark in County of Surrey, brewer, to his well beloved brother Thomas Fairman of the Province of Penna., is dated 3 Oct., 1684.

Devonshire House Friends' Records, London.

"Robert Fairman of Psh. of Olaves, Southwark, Brewer, son of William Fairman who lives the Town and County of Hartford, to Mary Wilkins. 12/3/1680/

Elizabeth Fairman of same, dau/of Isaac and Mary, late of Hartford, to John Baker, 11/21/1714.

Mary Fairman of same, widow of Robert, late of same, to Richard Hawkins 10/25/1718."

In 1642 a Robert Fairman was assistant clerk of the borough of Hartford.

In Thomas Fairman's Will, of 1711, he mentions a son Thomas, "now in ye army under the Duke of Marlborough". In the Administration of Estate of Thomas Fairman Jr. there is Proof of Death of this son. "John Pike of Phila. Mariner—maketh oath that he was Boatswain of a private ship of war called the Success, on a voyage from London to the South Sea, in the year 1718, in wh one Thomas Fairman (who often told this dept. he had some interest in Pennsylvania) was Purser—that the said T. F. dyd on board sd vessel near the Island of Gallipagos—and was buried at sea according to the naval form in such cases, but he had not heard of any will made by the sd deceased."

Thos. Fairman became Surv. Gen. of Pa. under commission of Oct. 29, 1702. He was succeeded Mar. 26, 1706 by Jacob Taylor. This was the position he desired and was disappointed when Penn appointed Edw. Pennington. He had done the work and wanted the office.

Thomas Fairman of Shackamaxon on ye river Delaware and Elizabeth Kinsey of the same were married 10/24/1680 at John Woolstons house, Burlington. 12 witnesses given.—Burlington Meeting Records.

Elizabeth Kinsey was daughter of John Kinsey, late of Hertfordshire. In another place he is entitled "of Great Hadham, in Hertfordshire, Gent." In another place "John Kinsey alias Kelsey." He left besides Elizabeth, son John (who died in or about 1698 making his will, leaving property to the Fairmans) son Benj. and daughters Susanna and Abigail Kinsey. I tried to straighten this out in N. J. Archives, vol xxi, p. 636, but the editor omitted all about John, Jr.'s will. There is the greatest amount of error written about his descendants. John Kinsey the Speaker is usually spoken of as the son of John Kinsey the Commissioner. John Kinsey, Jr. in his will mentions brother Benjamin and his children. It is quite possible that "Speaker" Kinsey was a son of this Benjamin whose residence is not given and is unknown to me.

Thomas Fairman gave up his house at Shackamaxon to William Penn during the latter's first winter in this country, moving his own family to another of his houses at Neshaminy.—W. S. Long, Haddonfield, New Jersey.

MAYFLOWER DESCENDANTS IN CAPE MAY COUNTY, NEW JERSEY. Memorial of the Three Hundredth Anniversary of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, 1620-1920. A Record of the Pilgrim Descendants who early in its History settled in Cape May County, and some of their children throughout the several States of the Union at the present time. By Rev. Paul Sturtevant Howe, LL.B., Ph.D. Cape May, 1921, p. 464, por., ills 7, 8c.

In Cape May County are to be found, perhaps as many descendants of the Mayflower Pilgrims as in Plymouth itself, albeit the descendants in Cape May must trace their descent commonly to John Howland and his wife, Elizabeth, daughter of John Tilley and then only through Joseph Whilldin and his wife, Hannah, daughter of John and Desire (Howland) Gorham.

To those long familiar with Cape May County history, the publication, in the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, in January, 1898, of John Gorham's "Wast Book," was a thing of joy. The "Wast Book," compiled to relieve the tedium of a winter's campaign in the Louisburg expedition of 1745, was a joy because of one paragraph: "Hannah (Gorham) mary'd a Wheeling boath moov'd to Cape may." Here was the answer to the old, old question—who was Hannah, wife of Joseph Whilldin?

New Jersey's southernmost-county was, at this time, not unsupplied with valuable historical material. The county records, supplemented by those in the office of the Secretary of State at Trenton, were excellent. Aaron Leaming the first, Aaron Leaming, second of the name and Jacob Spicer, the last two the widely known compilers of Leaming and Spicer's "LAWS OF NEW JERSEY," had left manuscript diaries much prized by antiquarians. Dr. Maurice Beesley, in his "SKETCH OF THE EARLY HISTORY OF CAPE MAY" (1857), had made a wise beginning with the printed word, "THE HISTORICAL ADDRESS ON THE ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE ORIGIN OR FOUNDING OF THE COLD SPRING PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, CAPE MAY," delivered by the Rev. Daniel Lawrence Hughes, September 26th 1889 had been printed, together with "CAPE MAY'S DEAD OF TWO CENTURIES, OR A CHRONOLOGICAL LIST OF PERSONS BURIED AT COLD SPRING CEMETERY—"a volume of sixty pages. This was followed, in 1891, by Dr. Hughes' better known work: "THE DIVINE COVENANT FULFILLED IN PIOUS HOUSEHOLDS, FROM 1711 TO 1891." Still later, 1897, came the "HISTORY OF CAPE MAY COUNTY," by Lewis T. Stevens, Esq.; and, in 1906, a copy of the "SESSION BOOK OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF THE LOWER TOWN-SHIP OF CAPE MAY, NEW JERSEY, was made by Mrs. Annie Crowell Rand and printed in the Mayflower Descendant.

The connecting link having been established between Cape May and Plymouth, all these publications took on an added interest and, slowly, one by one the initiated, among the widely dispersed descendants of Joseph and Hannah (Gorham) Whilldin, began to apply for admission to the various state societies of Mayflower Descendants. It was, however, left for Dr. Howe to weld together into the present book form the hitherto published and unpublished genealogical and historical facts, supplemented by additional research work. To quote the Foreword: "This volume, the contribution of the author to the Community, is the result of some three years investigation of the early history of the settlement of the county, and the history of the families to the present time. It is the most complete genealogical record, aside from its special investigation of the various lines of Mayflower descent, ever published upon the subject of Cape May ancestry, and corrects misleading statements of former writers. It is the wish of the publisher [Albert R. Rand] and author that the volume may be a permanent contribution to the history of our County and the people who have gone from it." It has a subject, name and place index.

CATALOGUE OF THE MEMORIAL EXHIBITION OF PORTRAITS BY THOMAS SULLY. The Pennsylvania Academy of The Fine Arts, Philadelphia, 1922, p. 181, 99 por., 1 plan, 8°.

In addition to being a Memorial to the artist, of whom there is a BRIEF SKETCH OF HIS LIFE," by the Academy's Secretary, John Andrews Myers, the Catalogue, by reason of its wealth of portraiture, is a work of art in itself, while the biographical sketches of the subject paintings, by Albert Cook Myers and Ernest Spofford, make it a valuable handbook of biography and genealogy. The helpful notation, B. F., followed by a numeral, refers to the Descriptive List of Sully's Paintings as numbered in Edward Biddle and Mantle Fielding's "LIFE AND WORK OF THOMAS SULLY, 1783-1872," Wickersham Press, Lancaster, 1921. The broad-minded co-operation of the Academy Management, these authors and the interested public makes the Exhibition and the Catalogue a production of which every Philadelphian and art lover can justly be proud. In the words of the Academy's President, John Frederick Lewis, "No exhibition of Sully's works such as is now shown the public has been gathered before and, it can be safely said that, probably, no such exhibition can ever be gathered again." The obvious truth of the statement only enhances the real worth of the Catalogue. One of Thomas Sully's contributions to posterity was his "Register" of his daily work with name of subject, size of canvass, date of beginning and completion, for whom painted and price paid. At the end of each twelve months he made a summary of the total of his labor. For the years of his artistic career, 1801-1872, he has recorded the painting of 2520 pictures at a valuation of $246,744. The Register is in the Dreer Collection of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. An article on the Register appeared in the Pennsylvania Magazine of History and Biography, vol. 32 (1908).

THE JOURNAL AND ESSAYS OF JOHN WOOLMAN. Edited from the Original Manuscripts with a Biographical Introduction by Amelia Mott Gummere, Rancocas Edition. Philadelphia, 1922, pp. xxii, 643; por. 7; ills. 36, 8°

By reason of its appealing charm and universal message of spiritual light, a half hundred or more editions of the great Quaker philanthropist's Journal have appeared since Joseph Cruikshank printed the first edition, in Philadelphia, in 1774, from the leather-bound folio, now in possession of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. Long ago it became a classic, beloved of Charles Lamb, President Eliot and many another scholar "born to blush unseen." The present variorum and definitive edition of the Journal and Essays is the result of an extensive comparison of the two hitherto inaccessible and earlier manuscripts, and the English Journal now at Swarthmore College, with the first edition itself, together with unremitting research among court, meeting and other records both in England and America. All writings of the eminent Friend so far as known are included, together with an unpublished ESSAY ON HUMAN RELATIONS. As editor, and in her carefully drawn Biographical Introduction, Mrs. Gummere has shown a rare, spiritual kinship with her subject and has succeeded in not only placing him in the proper setting of his contemporary life, but has supplied the student with rich material for a social study of large importance. The collection of brief biographical notices of one hundred and sixteen Friends mentioned in the text, many of them less or more obscure, will be a joy to genealogists. The comprehensive bibliography is a valuable addition to the work while the carefully prepared general index is equally important to the reader and student. The illustrations are of unusual interest.

SUPPLEMENT TO GENEALOGIES. By Edwin Jaquett Sellers. Press of Allen, Lane and Scott, Philadelphia, 1922, p. 73, 8°. Edition of one hundred and fifty copies.

Between 1890 and 1916 various genealogical publications appeared from the pen of this scholarly historian, whose interest survives his first editions. From the rich quarries of research his scalpel knife brings to light new facts, and this Supplement is the major findings. Additions are made to twelve families before treated of, to wit: Jaquett (20 p.), De Carpentier of Holland (3 p.), Van Eulenburg of Holland (12 p.), Stidham (3 p.), Pfeiffer (1 p.), Fenwick (10 p.), Kollock (7 p.), Shepherd (8 p.), Avery (2 p.), Kipshaven (3 p.), Davis (1 p.), Draper (2 p.).

ANCESTRY OF JEREMY CLARK OF RHODE ISLAND AND DUNCAN GENEALOGY. Compiled by Alfred Rudolph Justice. Philadelphia, 1922, p. 538, 10 ills., 13 por., 6 charts, 4 to.

This handsome quarto, from the press of the Franklin Printing Company, with its wealth of illustration and genealogical citation, contains the first published account of the English ancestry of Jeremy Clarke, one of the founders of Newport, and acting governor of Rhode Island in 1648, an ancestry which, according to the compiler, dates to Charlemagne. More important than length of royal lineage, however, is the placement of Jeremy Clark's parentage, after which so many writers had groped so long—"so near and yet so far." All interested in the origin of the given name of Weston Clarke, attorney-general of Rhode Island, 1676-1686, will rejoice that Mr. Justice has settled it beyond peradventure, and dispelled the myth which had attached itself to the so called first marriage of his mother, Frances Latham, to Lord Weston,—a marriage that never was. A chapter, of much that is new and invaluable, is devoted to the serjeant falconer of Charles I, Lewis Latham, the ancestor of many who were eminent in the annals of Rhode Island and Pennsylvania, and whose portrait by Sir Peter Lely, brought to Rhode Island in 1634, is yet in an excellent state of preservation. A copy of this was made, in 1895, by Cecelia Beaux of Philadelphia. Some four hundred pages are given to the family ancestry, and descendants to the tenth generation, of Rev. Thomas Dungan, the first Baptist clergyman of Pennsylvania. The volume closes with a comprehensive biographical sketch and deductions as to the ancestry of Arthur Cooke, gentleman, deputy-governor, provincial councillor and first chief-justice of Pennsylvania. Other writers had blazed the trail in some of these genealogical fields, but it remained for Mr. Justice to "carry on" to a highly successful finish. The "Sources of Information" and good index will greatly aid in the wide consultation the book is sure to have.

WILLING LETTERS AND PAPERS. Edited with a Biographical Essay of Thomas Willing of Philadelphia, 1731-1821. By Thomas Willing Balch. Press of Allen, Lane and Scott, Philadelphia, 1922; Seventy two copies printed; type distributed; pp. ix, xlviii, 227, 8°.

The "Willing Papers" had already been presented to the Historical Society of Pennsylvania by the author, who with commendable open-mindedness now gives them all, together with letters that are elsewhere, to the reading public in the form of the present volume. It is a notable contribution to the lights and shadows that preceded, enveloped and followed the Revolutionary period in Philadelphia and the Colonies. From 1754 to 1807 Mr. Willing successively held the offices of Secretary to the Congress of Delegates at Albany, Mayor of Philadelphia, her representative in the Provincial Assembly, Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, President of the Provincial Congress, member of Continental Congress, first president of the Bank of North America and first president of the Bank of the United States. The head of the mercantile house of Willing and Morris he was a leader in the movement against the Stamp Act and one of the Committee to enforce the Non-Importation Agreement of 1765. In 1780, when the Continental Army seemed on the verge of dissolution, he was a subscriber to the amount of £5,000 to a fund of £260,000 towards the foundation of the Pennsylvania Bank which provided means of re-organization and re-equipment. Independent in thought and action he stood four-square to the winds of public opinion and played a potent though not spectacular role in American affairs where his integrity, patriotism and public services commanded the unqualified esteem of his contemporaries. It is hoped that this volume is but the preliminary to a still more comprehensive work on this financier of by-gone days.

STEPHEN GIRARD FOUNDER, 1750-1831. By Cheesman A. Herriek, Ph.D., LL.D., President of Girard College, Philadelphia, 1923. Set up and printed in the Trade School, Girard College, p. ix, 203, ill. 10, por. 6, 8°.

A story tellingly told and dedicated to the posthumous foster sons of the great philanthropist, the Girard College Boys of the Past, Present and Future. The author presents his subject as one of the three men who made the largest contribution to the welfare of Philadelphia, William Penn, Benjamin Franklin, Stephen Girard, and also as one of the three Philadelphia financiers who each gave practical aid in bringing to a successful conclusion one of three great wars in which the United States was engaged in their time, Robert Morris in that of the Revolution, Jay Cooke in the Civil War and Stephen Girard in that of 1812. It is distinctly shown as the story grows that, apart from his great financial assistance to the Country of his choice in the dark days of 1814, it is difficult to overestimate Philadelphia's debt to Stephen Girard for his services in its yellow fever epidemics, in his establishment of the Stephen Girard Banking House upon the ruins of the Bank of United States, and for his fatherhood to fatherless sons in the Girard College Foundation. As a "human document," Dr. Herriek's Essay is of large value to the biographical and social history of Philadelphia.

THIRTY FIRST ANNUAL REPORT OF THE GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

READ AT THE ANNUAL MEETING, MARCH 5, 1923.

To the Members of The Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania:

The Board of Directors beg to submit the following report for the calendar year ending December 31, 1922.

At the thirtieth annual meeting of the Society held March 6, 1922, the following named officers and directors were elected:

President, J. Granville Leach.

Recording Secretary, Ernest Spofford.

Corresponding Secretary, Edward Robins.

Treasurer, C. Howard Colket.

Historian, Ogden D. Wilkinson.

Directors, to serve three years, Stevenson H. Walsh, Charles P. Jenkins, Miss Nina Lea.

Immediately following the election, Honorable Hampton L. Carson, LL. D., President of The Historical Society of Pennsylvania, delivered a most interesting and informing address, based on the Humphreys Papers in the Manuscript Division of the Historical Society, entitled The Humphreys Family: Pioneers, Shipbuilders, Soldiers. The usual supper for members and guests followed.

At a regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors, held February 20, 1922, Miss Nina Lea was elected a Director to fill the vacancy created by the death of Mrs. James Mifflin; and, also as Mrs. Mifflin's successor, it was reported at this meeting, that Miss Lea had accepted the chairmanship of The Associate Committee of Women.

At the April meeting the Treasurer reported the receipt of a check for $2,000 from the Estate of Lily Sturgis Mifflin, and on motion it was resolved that this bequest be known as The Lily Sturgis Mifflin (Mrs. James Mifflin) Legacy.

At the special meeting of the Board held June 5, 1922, Vice-President Sayres offered the following resolution, which was on motion unanimously adopted and the Secretary instructed to have a copy engrossed for the family of the Society's late President:

"At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of The Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania held in the Stille Room of The Historical Society of Pennsylvania, Monday afternoon, June 5, 1922, at four o'clock, the following minute was unanimously adopted:

"The Board of Directors of The Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania has heard with profound regret and sincere grief of the death on May 27th, 1922, at his residence in Philadelphia, of Colonel Josiah Granville Leach, President of the Society. Colonel Leach and four others were the original founders of the Society which met at the house of Charles Swift Riché Hildeburn in Clinton Street, Philadelphia, on the evening of February 13th, 1892. All have since passed away save one. It was always a question between Colonel Leach and Mr. Hildeburn as to which of them suggested the founding of the Society, but always discussed in a friendly spirit. Colonel Leach, since its founding was, perhaps, the most active man and more earnest in the affairs of the Society than any one. He was elected April 21st, 1913, President of the Society, succeeding Rear Admiral Edward Shippen, M. D., U. S. N.

"He was a learned lawyer, a skilled genealogist and an intelligent and reliable historian, interested in many historical and hereditary societies, in many of which he held high office. His advice was not only always sought for but followed almost in every case, his judgment being sound. Coming by descent from an early New England family, he was naturally a gentleman by birth and surroundings.

"To this Society his loss is immeasurably great for he was the mainstay of its work and influence from its founding, and to these of his colleagues of this Board, by whom he was much beloved, his loss is a personal grief and will be deeply felt. His courtesy and urbanity, his cheerfulness, pluck and courage in all matters were well-known.

"This minute to his memory is placed on our records as a brief tribute of the great loss the Society has suffered in his death."

At the October meeting announcement was made of the exceedingly generous gift of $5,000. to the permanent fund of the Society from Miss Anna Justina Magee, a life member of the Society and a member of The Associate Committee of Women. Attention was also invited to Miss Magee's splendid gift of a like amount to the parent organization, The Historical Society of Pennsylvania. At this same meeting, Mr. C. Howard Colket's suggestion that the Publication of the Society for 1923 should be a memorial number to the late President of the Society, and contain a sketch of his life and a portrait, was, on motion referred to the Committee on Publications, with power to act. Mr. C. Howard Colket's resignations as Treasurer and Chairman of the Executive Committee were then read and laid upon the table. At this same meeting the senior Vice-President, Charles P. Keith, was elected President of the Society and Messrs. Edward S. Sayres, John Frederick Lewis and C. Howard Colket, Vice-Presidents.

At the November meeting, Mrs. Sarah Logan Wister Starr's letter to Mr. C. Howard Colket, acknowledging the receipt of flowers from this Society on the occasion of the formal opening of The Pennsylvania Society of the Colonial Dames of America's building, 1630 Latimer Street, this city, was read, and Mr. Colket's thoughtfulness heartily approved. This incident is noted on the minutes as marking the first instance in Philadelphia of an hereditary-patriotic organization building a home of its own, and as evidencing the cordial relations existing between the Societies. This relationship had been emphasized earlier in the year by a meeting under the auspices of the two organizations, held in May, at the Corinthian Yacht Club, Essington. As this function was, however, planned for this Society by The Associate Committee of Women, it will receive an adequate notice in the Committee's report.

This November meeting was eventful. Announcement was made that Alfred Percival Smith, Esq., desired to be a liberal contributor to a permanent fund which he suggested should be created in memory of the Society's late President, to be known as The Josiah Granville Leach Memorial Fund. This fund is still open. Mr. Stevenson H. Walsh offered an amendment to the By-Laws to be incorporated at the end of Article II, Section 5, to wit: "The Board, by unanimous vote of the members present at any stated meeting, may in recognition of services rendered elect Honorary Vice-Presidents." Mr. Frank H. Stewart said that the Society should own a photostat to be used in copying Church and other records; and referred to the accuracy, speed and permanency of photostat reproductions as compared with the slow, laborious, costly and less certain method of copying now employed by the Society. Mr. Stewart offered to subscribe to a special fund for the purchase and installation of such a machine; whereupon Mr. Stewart, Miss Leach and Mr. Spofford were appointed a committee to report on the cost and advisability of purchasing a photostat.

At the December meeting Mr. C. Howard Colket's resignations as Treasurer, Chairman of the Executive Committee and Vice-President were, with keen regret, accepted to take effect December 31, 1922. Mr. Stevenson H. Walsh was elected a Vice-President, Mr. Ogden D. Wilkinson, who had been serving on the Board as Historian, Treasurer, and Miss May Atherton Leach a Director; their terms of office to begin January 1, 1923. The President appointed Miss Leach Chairman of the Executive Committee.

During the year 123 new members were enrolled; of this number 69 responded to written invitations authorized by the Board of Directors; 26 were proposed by individual members, Mrs. M. Stanton Taylor leading with eight; and 28 by The Associate Committee of Women.

The membership, the largest in the history of the Society, is as follows:

THE THIRD ANNUAL REPORT OF THE ASSOCIATE COMMITTEE OF WOMEN.

READ AT THE ANNUAL MEETING, MARCH 5TH., 1923.

To the Board of Directors and Members of The Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania:

Your Associate Committee of Women has, during the past year, duly functioned in its assigned avenues of work. In the matter of adding to the Society's membership it has maintained its record of former years and no stated meeting of the Committee has failed of nominations.

Miss Anna J. Magee, a member of the Committee, made a gift to the Society's permanent fund of five thousand dollars and a like sum to The Historical Society. This unsolicited contribution is a notable addition to the Society's resources, particularly so, when it is remembered that it represents one hundred life memberships therein concentrated into one, and that, by such means, is the permanency of the organization insured against the varying tides of time.

Other members of the Committee have contributed to the different activities of the Society more than thirteen hundred dollars. The grace of all this lies not so much in the creditable amount as in the spirit of loyalty to the Society, good fellowship and spontaneity of giving.

By the courtesy of the Corinthian Yacht Club and with the co-operation of the Entertainment Committee of the Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Dames, your Associate Committee arranged for a Commemoration of the early Swedish Settlements on the Delaware as the Spring outing of the Society.

Critically considered, the coming of the Swedes to the Delaware in the twelve expeditions sent out by Sweden during the years 1638 to 1655, and the establishment in 1643, on Great Tinicum Island, of the seat of that sovereignty of which Governor Johan Printz was the personal and actual representative in America, was one of, if not the most important event in the development of early Colonial Pennsylvania.

The Swedes came through the years 1638-1655, and they remained off the shores of the Delaware through the Dutch occupation, 1655 to 1664, when the Dutch flag was lowered. There, too, they remained until the coming of the great Proprietary, William Penn, affiliating with his Colonists until they became an integral part of the warp and woof of the state fabric of Pennsylvania.

There were Swedes in the first Council of Governor Markham's, Penn's deputy, and they and their descendants continued to hold various offices at various times until the Revolution. It will be recalled that it was John Morton, a descendant of these Swedes of the Tenth Expedition, who, casting the deciding vote in favor of Independence gave to Pennsylvania the opportunity to be called the "Keystone State".

Pennsylvania's debt to these Colonists cannot well be over emphasized. Massachusetts had her Plymouth Colony and Connecticut her New Haven Colony, and these were no more important, and certainly no more picturesque than Pennsylvania's Colony of Swedes on the Delaware.

This then was the event celebrated, on Thursday, May 25th., 1922, at the historic grounds of the Corinthian Yacht Club, on Tinicum Island, near Philadelphia.

The inscription on the marker at the entrance to the Club House graphically tells the story of the fitness of the place for the commemoration:

"The Land and River Front of the Corinthian Yacht Club at this spot were part of the seat of the Swedish Government, during its occupation of the Delaware River, 1638-1655. The Swedish Chapel was situated to the eastward, near the line between the Club's property and the property of the Rosedale Inn. The Burying Ground was near the Chapel, on what is now a part of the Club lawn. The large stone step beneath this plate was the step of the Chapel. Directly in front of the Rosedale Inn was the house of John Printz, the Swedish Governor, who had a Yacht on the river and was the first American Yachtsman. The Fort, called New Gothenborg, is believed to have been on the shore some two hundred yards to the westward of the Club House. An Indian Council was held here and a Treaty was made with the Indians on the 17th of June, 1654."

From the flag staff of the Club, the Stars and Stripes of the United States, with Sweden's flag of blue and gold, flew to the Delaware breezes during the Commemorative exercises. It was the first time in 266 years that Sweden's flag had been raised in the seat of its ancient sovereignty on Tinicum Island.

Some five hundred of the membership of the two celebrating bodies assembled in the Club House and on the grounds. In addition, there were delegates from the learned societies and patriotic-hereditary organizations of this and other cities. The especial guest of the occasion was His Excellency, Axel F. Wallenberg, Minister from Sweden to the United States.

The orators spoke from the broad veranda facing the Delaware, that highway on which every ship, that passed between the years 1638 and 1655, had to stop and pay its toll to Governor Printz, who is said to have weighed four hundred pounds and to have drunk "three horns of wine with every meal".

Mr. Wallenberg, in a short and graceful address, said the Swedish colonization on the Delaware had bequeathed an invincible bond between his country and this which had never been broken, but had strengthened with increasing years. He stressed the freedom-loving kinship that existed between the peoples of Sweden and America and the similarity of ideas that would unite them for all time.

Hon. J. Willis Martin, in his address of welcome on behalf of the Corinthian Yacht Club, expressed the hope that some permanent memorial would be erected on the island in honor of the Swedish Colonists. Other Speakers were: Hon. Hampton L. Carson, who made the formal address of the afternoon, Thomas Willing Balch, Esq. and Thomas Lynch Montgomery, Litt. D.

The attractive musical program consisted of the National Anthems of Sweden and this Country, led by the Gloria Dei Choir, Old Swedes, Philadelphia, and a collection of old Swedish songs, charmingly rendered by Miss Greta Torpadie of New York.

Preceding the exercises the Chairman of your Associate Committee gave a luncheon at the Acorn Club in honor of the Swedish Minister and Mrs. Wallenberg. To this were invited the speakers and their wives, the officers of The Genealogical Society and The Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Dames and the committees in charge of the Commemoration.

This is a somewhat lengthy resume of this Commemoration. It was however a Commemoration which drew considerable favorable attention to The Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania, due no doubt to the wide range of invitations to those of Scandinavian birth and descent within the borders of our land. In this connection it may be mentioned that, there are 24 United States Congressmen of Scandinavian birth or descent. It would be of great interest to such a Society as this to know how many, if any, of these descend from any of the twelve expeditions sent out by Sweden 1638 to 1655.

So much for the past. For the near future your Committee has in preparation two general gatherings for the Society to which your attention will be duly drawn.

At the Annual meeting in February, following the stated monthly meeting, the Chairman appointed the following three standing sub-committees:

Membership: Mrs. Benson, Mrs. Pemberton, Mrs. Rogers.

Entertainment: Mrs. Parker, Miss Gilpin, Miss Magee, Miss Grundy, Mrs. Colket, Mrs. Ball.

Records: Mrs. Gummere, Mrs. Scott, Miss Leach.
